THE WEATHER.

U. S. Department of Agriculture,

There is a storm of slight energy central north of Montana, and is moving eastward. It has as yet caused no rain over that section of the country.

An area of high pressure covers the country from the Rocky mountains to Lake Michigan and as far south as the Gulf of Mexico.

Over the eastern half of the country the pressure is about normal.

The weather is generally fair in all sections of the country except around the lakes where it is cloudy and rainy.

Rains has fallen during the past 24 hours over portions of Iowa, Wisconsin, Michigan, Illinois, Massachusetts, Kentucky, New York, Virginia, and the District of Columbia. They have been very light except at Albany, where 1.14 inches fell.

The temperature ranges from 50 degrees at St. Vincent to 82 degrees at Charleston, S. C., and slowly rising temperature is probable in all sections during the next two days.

Forecast for Toledo and vicinity:

On Monday, fair, stationary temperature; on Tuesday, fair, followed by rain, warmer. E. A. HANNER,

Capt. Heistand Teaching the Boys the Intricacies

And the Matters of Usefulness in a Soldier—Target Practice Now On—Dinners and Parties—Notes Picked Up.

Fremont, Aug. 1.—(Special)—An ideal camp.

Such is the commendation of hundreds of visitors at Camp Buckland.

The annual encampment of the Sixteenth regiment is in full progress, and the routine of camp life thoroughly established.

After dinner on Saturday the battalions were formed on the ground, and marched down town, and the regular street formations made. Every maneuver possible was executed in the street, and with an accuracy and neatness that created a most favorable impression in the opinion of all who witnessed the parade.

The regiment marched back to camp about 4 o'clock, and from this time on until the supper call the captains put their men through company skirmish drill. The camp grounds afford splendid facilities for this drill, the race track in particular.

During dress parade, Captain Heistand, of the Eleventh Infantry United States army, quietly wandered into camp in civilian dress, and made himself known to Officer of the Day Capt. Wade, after innocently making a few inquiries, as if seeking information about camp life, etc.

Captain Heinstnd was not expected until yesterday, and his arrival was a most pleasant surprise. Immediately after dress parade, Captain Wade escorted the visitor to regimental headquarters, where he was most heartily greeted by the officers of the regiment.

Captain Heinstand is a man of extremely pleasant disposition, modest and unassuming in appearance and a soldier to the manor born. His heart and soul are in military service, and he has made it his life work. He has been detailed by the secretary of war to visit the annual encampments of the regiments of Ohio, and he is never so happy as when instructing militia officers, commissioned or non-commissioned, privates, in company squad or singly. His instructions involves every detail of the new regulations, but his ambition is centered in establishing and maintaining a faultless camp guard, and his efforts to stir the boys to a full apprehension of the importance of this duty is untiring. Regardless of the fact that he had worked hard all day, he made the grand rounds of the guard line, on each relief, four in number, during the night, and put each sentinel through a rigid course of instruction on guard duty.

The captain has a peculiar manner of giving instructions. He does not endeavor to impress upon his hearers the greatness of his own importance and knowledge, but on the contrary treats all with whom he comes in contact with the greatest of respect.

The boys appreciate the fact that Captain Heistand is here to instruct them, and all who are ambitous to become true soldiers are not slow to take advantage of his valuable instructions.

Much good has grown out of having an officer of the regular army detailed to visit the camp of the militia," said Col. Bunker while in conversation with a Bee. "Until within the past few years, to be called a militiaman was to cause a sort of a shrug of the shoulders with an expression of contempt. During the presence of a regular army officer in camp of militia he extends to an officer superior in rank to himself in the militia the same courtesy that he extends to an officer of like rank in the regular. This demonstrates that there is no distinction between an officer of the regular army and officer of the militia. The militia of the various other states, as now organized, are held in the same esteem and treated with the same consideration and courtesy that officers and privates of the regular army are."

"The enlisted men of the militia observe this and it gives them a soldierly pride that they never felt when the word militiamen was the synonym for contempt. In every instance that a regular army officer has been assigned to the Sixteenth regiment, his relation with both the officers and privaes has been of a most coridal nature and the instruction imparted by this officer of the regular army has been of inestimable value.

"Each year the relation between the militia of the various states and the regular army has grown closer, and to-day each has a mutual interest in the other. The United States army is the active force, the militia the reserve force, being educated for active service whenever an emergency may arise."

Camp Deportment.

The deportment of the members of camp Buckland on a whole, has been most excellent.

In considering this important feature of camp life, the attending surroundings and conditions must not be lost sight of. Human nature is human nature and stolen fruits taste sweetest.

It would be a physical impossibility and events of the past go to prove the statement, to pitch 500 men, regardless of character or vocation and put them together in one big family, but what some of them would overstep the bounds of propriety, in one way or another.

Some of the boys have been a little indiscreet in some respects, but Col. Bunker was prompt to enforce discipline, which necessitated the detailing of a patrol, with orders to go over town and arrest every member of the camp whose conduct was unbecoming of a soldier. On Saturday night the patrol consisted of 50 men, but there were but three or four arrests made. The boys are indeed well behaved.

Sunday in Camp.

The day broke bright and clear and the camp was astir long before the reveille was called at 6 o'clock.

Col. Bunker on Saturday evening issued oders that the Sabbath would be observed and camp routine abandoned, with the exception of guard mount, dress parade and inspection, the latter order being published for 10 o'clock a. m.

At the regular hour the battalion formed on the camp grounds and marched to the regimental parade grounds.

Here the regiment was found by the adjutant and turned over to the colonel commanding.

The regiment was then formed into a column of companies, after which the commanding officer conducted regimental inspection, assisted by Captain Heistand, of the regular army. The companies turned out in heavy marching order with knapsacks, haversacks, and canteen. Overcoats were strapped to knapsacks.

From 500 to 1,000 visitors were on the grounds all the day long.

At 8 o'clock divine services were held in the grand stand, Chaplain Donehay officiating.

Regimental Target Contest.

Regimental target contest occurred at 11 o'clock to-day.

The contest is between teams picked from the different companies, each man shooting 10 shots, five at a range of 200 yards and another at 300 yards, the winner to hold the regimental prize badge for one year.

The teams were made up as follows:

Company A—Lieut. Jacob Kreiger, Sergeant P. Culp, Privates E. E. Gamer, C. F. Ward, Geo. Lenhart.

Company E—Sergeant Frank Newman, Fremont Stuller, Corporals Warren Shook, Chas. Blair, Wm. Franks.

Robert West, of Toledo, was a guest of Captain Holbrook, of Company H, over Sunday.

Captain Heistand is of the opinion that all regiments should be in camp at least 15 days.

Police authorities report the boys deportment while in the city as being exceptionally good.

A number of the tents in camp sheltered flood sufferers at Johnstown and are pretty badly used up.

There are several pairs of boxing gloves in camp, and any quantity of swollen lips and red noses.

Two tables were laid at regimental mess quarters at dinner yesterday, to accommodate the guests.

The sacred concert by the band Sunday evening was quite appropriate and enjoyed by all who heard it.

Capt. Heistnd is a regular night-owl, and may b efound on the guard line at almost any hour of the night.

Regimental officers are more than pleased with the hospitality and courtesy extended by Fremont citizens.

Ice cream for supper last night, dress parade just after, and the surgeons were busy all night in consequence.

Grant Ferguson, of Fremont, and Col. J. T. Chapman, of Sandusky, Mexican war veterans, were in camp yesterday.

The boys detail new recruits to sentinel duty guarding flag poles and other just as important stations as much as they ever did.

There is a scarcity of bunks and blankets, and a good many of the boys awake in the morning with nothing but the tent over them.

The Trinity Cadets arrived in Camp Sunday morning and for dress parade the company was assigned to a position in the first battalion.

Adjutant Rickenbaugh is a favorite with the ladies, and yesterday his time was about evenly divided between duty and the fairer sex.

Col. Bunker issued an order that the gate to the river would be open this morning from 5 to 7, and all who desired could take a swim.

The boys were up early this morning, polishing their guns and putting their quarters in shape, in anticipation of inspection by Adjutant General Pocock to-day.

The officers and their ladies have accepted an invitation extended by ex-President Hayes for dinner this evening. To-morrow afternoon the ladies will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Col. Buckland, and the officers will join them at dinner in the evening.

Carter Clifford, the boy soldier, is in camp. The little fellow is only 10 years old, and executes the manual of arms with an accuracy and dispatch that has won for him a world-wide reputation. He is with Company E, and turns out every night on dress parade.

The turning point in woman's life brings peculiar weaknesses and ailments. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription brings relief and cure. It is a powerful, invigorating, restorative tonic and nervine. It imparts strength to the whole system in general, and to the uterine organs and appendages in particular. "Run-down," debilitated and delicate women need it. It's a legitimate medicine—purely vegetable, perfectly harmless. It's guaranteed to give satisfaction in every case, or money refunded. Nothing else does as much. You only pay for the good you get.

Can you ask more?

As a regulator and promoter of functional action, at that critical period of change from girlhood to womanhood, "Favorite Prescription" is a perfectly safe remedial agent, and can produce only good results. It is equally efficacious and valuable in its effects when taken for those disorders and derangements incident to that later and most critical period, known as "The Change of Life."

Non-Union Men in the Pittsburg Mills.

A Petition for Arbitration to be Filed in the Court at Homestead—Troops on Guard.

Pittsburg, Aug. 1.—Mr. Frick passed a comfortable night; is out of his bed this morning; ate a hearty breakfast and no doubt will visit his office later in the week. It is said that no more bulletins of his condition will be issued by the surgeon.

The Thirty-third street union mill of the Carnegie Steel company is in operation this morning with non-union men guarded by Pittsburg policemen.

The new men were taken into the works under guard at 6 o'clock this morning. The exact number of non-union workmen at the Thirty-third street mill is not yet known to Secretary Lovejoy.

No petition for the appointment of an arbitration tribunal for settlement of the Homestead troubles has been filed in court, nor will there be until to-morrow.

Superintendent of Police O'Mara, District Attorney Burleigh and Attorney Fredman will to-day arrange a satisfactory bail among themselves for the release of Bauer and Knold, the suspected accomplices of Berkman, and will ask Judge Magee to accept it to-morrow morning. Because of the absence from the city of senior counsel Dickey no suits in the Iams case will be entered to-day. They are expected, however, to-morrow.

More non-union men were taken to Homestead this morning on the steamer Tide. There were at least 100 in the party.

The Troops Remain.

Pittsburg, Aug. 1.—Battery B, and the Sheridan troop of cavalry, were out for exercise this morning and returned to Homestead, where they will remain in camp until ordered home.

THE UNION FOR EVER.

The C., B. & Q. to Take Back Its Men.

Reported That the Great Railroad Company no Longer Antagonizes Organized Labor.

St. Louis, Aug. 1.—A special from St. Joseph, Mo., says there is a general discredited rumor in circulation in railroad circles that the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy is about to formally lock arms with the federation of railway employes, whereby all unions will receive recognition.

Since the strike of 1888 of the locomotive engineers none of the organizations have negotiated with the "Q." people, though they were not disturbed.

However, several conferences have been held in Chicago during the past week. These negotiations have been conducted secretly, systematically and on business principles. The railroad officials have been fair, and so have the representatives of the workingmen, and as a consequence the labor has been fruitful.

The "Q." will henceforth recognize organized labor, and has agreed to a readjustment of the scale of wages. The work of readjusting the scale will begin early next week.

LOST BUT FOUND.

A Strange Story of the Wanderings of a Child.

Philadelphia, Aug 1.—A dispatch was received this morning at police headquarters stating that after the baby parade at Asbury Park, Saturday, a lost child was found who gave the name of Ralph Leech.

The waif is undoubtedly the five-year-old grandson of William A. Barrett, of 3505 Mather street, who was supposed to have been abducted, and of whose disappearance announcements were made yesterday in the Tioga pulpits.

It is not known how he got to Asbruy Park, but the police think the father came from Alabama and quietly took the boy to the resort and that they separated in the crowd. The police have telegraphed the Asbury Park authorities to hold the child.

GLADSTONE BETTER.

London, Aug. 1.—Mr. Gladstone left his bed room this afternoon and took lunch in the library, where he had a long conference with Sir William Vernon Harcourt, the Right Hon. John Morley and Arnold Murry.

SENSATIONAL.

A Prisoner in the Jail at Glasgow

Confesses to the Authorities That He is a Murderer.

Wholesale Slaughter Placed at His Door.

The Man Who Killed the Earl of Leitrim.

Claims He Was Engaged to Commit the Crimes by the Men Who Removed Carey, the Informer.

London, Aug. 1.—A prisoner in the jail at Glasgow, Scotland, declares that he took part in the murder of William Sydney, third earl of Leitrim, who was murdered April 2, 1878, by being shot by unknown assassins on account, it is alleged, of his practice of seducing the daughters of tenants on the Leitrim estate.

The prisoner also confesses that he was engaged in the assassination of Wiliam Browne de Montmorency, viscount Mount Morris, who was murdered near Clonbur, County Galway, Ireland, September 25, 1880. The earl of Leitrim, his clerk, and driver were shot dead near his lodge, Manor Vaughan, in Donegal.

The murderers fired from behind a hedge and did their work so effectually that no witnesses survived to tell the story or to furnish evidence to the authorities. Lord Mount Morris was shot after dark while passing a place called Butheen.

The statement made by the prisoner is that he was engaged to assist in both crimes by the murderer of Carey, the informer, and that both murders had been decreed by the central authority of the Irish revolutionary party. The authorities are not inclined to believe the story although at a loss for the man's motive in telling it if not true.

They are, however, making inquiries to ascertain whether there is any evidence to corroborate the statement.

William Henderson, who confesses to have taken part in the murders of the Earl of Leitrim and Lord Mount Morris, is 33 years of age, and all that the police know of his doing is that he passed his youth in the reformatory and was generally of bad repute.

Of his career between 1878 and 1888 they know nothing, but they think he was not the sort of a man to have been selected by the Irish extremists to assist in such deeds as the murders in which he says he was a guilty participant.

DO CONGRESSMEN DRINK

And Lose Their State of Stable Equilibrium?

Evidence Placed Before the Committee.

Closing Hours of Congress Furnish Much Interesting Reading Matter.

Washington, Aug. 1.—The special committee of the house investigating the charges made by Mr. Watson, of Georgia, that members had been seen on the floor of the house stagger and reel from drunkenness, met this morning.

Ex-Gov. Josiah Patterson, of Tennessee, was the first witness called.

Chairman Boatner asked his name. Mr. Patterson replied "Josiah."

Mr. Boatner—Have you had that name all the time?"

Gov. Patterson—"Always."

Witness said he had never noticed a member drunk on the floor, and so far as he knew the statement was untrue. He had known Mr. Cobb since his arrival here as a member of the house and the day that Mr. Cobb made his speech on the Noyes-Rockwell contested election he (Mr. Patterson) had listened to him throughout his argument which was a long one. He had seen Mr. Cobb drink from a cup, but as to its containing whisky he could not state. As to Judge Cobb being drunk he wished the public to know that it was not true. Witness sat within four feet of Mr. Cobb when he was making his speech.

Mr. Bynum, of Indiana, was the next witness. He said he was not in the house the day Judge Cobb spoke. Mr. Boatner asked him if he had ever seen any member of the house drunk on the floor.

Witness said he had never seen such a thing and was of the opinion that such a thing had never taken place.

Mr. Simpson objected to the question.

Mr. Boatner told him that he could appeal to the committee.

Mr. Simpson—I do not wish to appeal to the committee.

Mr. Watson made a statement to he effect that he was satisfied with investigation, as it had proved that his charges were true, and that he did not intend to make the charge general against the house, but only against individuals.

Mr. Simpson moved that the question put to Mr. Bynum respecting the general character of the house as to sobriety be stricken out.

The committee overruled Mr. Simpson's motion.

Mr. Bynum said this house was as sober and dignified a body as he was ever in.

Gen. Wise, of Louisiana, clerk to the committee on inter-state commerce, and W. P. Hepburn, solicitor of the treasury, listened to Judge Cobbs' speech from the gallery and were not able to discover any symptoms of drunkenness about Judge Cobb.

After recess Mr. Raynor, of Maryland, said he thought the charge that Judge Cobb was drunk was absolutely untrue, and that the remark of Mr. Cobb: "Mr. Speaker, where was I at?" was made in jest.

Mr. Kilgore, of Texas, said he was in the chair while Mr. Cobb was speaking. He would have noticed Judge Cobb had he been under the influence of liquor.

Mr. Long, of Texas, was six or eight feet from Judge Cobb during his speech and did not consider the charges applicable to him.

Mr. Breckenridge, of Kentucky, did not think the report that Judge Cobb was drunk during his speech was true. He thought that the remark: "Where was I at" was simply a jest.

Mr. DeForest, of Connecticut, said he had never seen a member reel or stagger in the house. The remark Mr. Cobb made was in the nature of a protest against frequent interruptions.

Four Day's Life.

Washington, Aug. 1.—The house has passed Mr. Holman's resolution extending the government appropriations for four days.

TOOK HIS OWN LIFE.

Louis Troutman Kills Himself to Get Free From Sickness.

Philadelphia, Aug. 1.—Louis Troutmann, aged 79 years, father of Ralph Troutmann, of the firm of Troutmann, Bailey & Blampley, lithographers, 312 Broadway, New York, committed suicide this morning at his room at the Washington hotel, Seventh and Germantown avenue, by blowing out his brains.

He was a sufferer from diabetes, and the only known cause was to put himself out of misery. The body was taken to the Twenty-second district station house and an inquest will be held to-morrow.

The remains will be turned over to the son, Ralph Troutmann, for interment. The deceased had no regular home and had been at the Washington hotel for a week.

RAILROAD HAPPENINGS.

Affairs of the Philadelphia & Reading.

A Total Capital Stock of Forty-Five Million Dollars—The Transfers.

Philadelphia, Aug. 1.—The exchange of the voting trust certificates of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad company for certificates of stock began to-day and will continue until October 1. August 1 marks the expiration of the voting trust which, during the past five years of reorganization, has had possession of the stock. This work of reorganization has been one of the most weighty and extensive undertakings that has interested American financial circles for years and has been attended with conspicuous success.

The total capital of the stock will be, in round numbers, $45,000,000, which includes $5,000,000 convertible third preference bonds; $200,000 of the certificates of deposit of Brown Brothers & Company, representing stock deposited under the reorganization plan, whose holders have not exchanged them for voting trust certificates; and $10,000 of the old common stock of the company which was not deposited under the plan; all of which are changeable for the new stock certificates.

The Reading system passed into receivers' hands on May 24, 1880. On February 28, 1883, a plan for the readjustment of its affairs having been perfected, the receivers were discharged; but the plan proved a failure, and receivers were again appointed for the system June 2, 1884.

On December 14, 1886, a plan or reorganization was agreed upon and by its means the property was restored to the company on January 2, 1888. The plan provided, in brief, for the payment of the floating debt and the receiver's certificates, the scaling down of interest and rental charges and the conversion of fixed annual interest and rental charges and the conversion of fixed annual charges into obligations on which the interest should be payable only when earned. The voting trustees have been John Lowber Welsh, J. Pierpont Morgan, John Wanamaker, and Austin Corbin.

Much more was accomplished than was hoped for. All obligations were met promptly and last year the full limit of 5 per cent was paid on the first preference incomes and 4 1-8 per cent on the second preference incomes and if the balance of the present fiscal years proves as successful as the first half, not only will 5 per cent be paid on all the preference incomes, but it is believed small dividends will have been earned for the common stock.

A. J. BALFOUR.

A Charge That He Got His Seat by Bribery.

London, Aug. 1.—A petition has been granted against the return of the Right Hon. Arthur James Balfour, first lord of the treasury and conservative leader in the house of commons, as member of parliament for East Manchester, on the ground that his election was obtained by bribery and illegal voting, by the wholesale treating of voters and the hiring of vehicles to carry them to the polls.

Mr. Balfour was declared elected by 5,147 votes, to 4,749 for Prof. J. F. C. Munro, liberal. In 1886 Mr. Balfour was elected by 4,160 votes to 3,516 for J. H. Crosfield liberal, and when Mr. Balfour accepted office he was returned without opposition.

ON THE ISLE OF WIGHT.

Emperor William Has Arrived at Cowes.

He Will Sail His Own Yacht, the Meteor, During Some of the Races.

Cowes, Isle of Wight, Aug. 1.—Emperor William, in his yacht, the Kaiseradler, formerly the Hohenzollern, arrived here at noon, convoyed by two British men-of-war which steamed up the channel to meet him. He was received by royal salutes from the ships in the harbor and from the forts ashore, the Spithead forts being the first to sound the thunder of welcome.

All the vessels in the harbor were decked with bunting and the vast number of small yachts which at this time of year are to be found cruising in he Isle of Wight waters, lent animation to the scene.

Wilhelm could be seen standing on the bridge in semi-naval uniform directly the vessel entered the Solent. To all appearances he was in command of the yacht, but this may have been only a matter of form, as he had a pilot on board.

Directly on his arrival at Cowes the yacht cast anchor, and the emperor embarking on board his gig was rowed smartly ashore. Thence he drove in one of the queen's carriages to Osborne house, where his royal grandmother was awaiting him.

To-night the emperor will dine with the queen at a banquet being served in the new banquet hall, a grand room which has recently been sumptuously decorated in oriental fashion. To-morrow (Tuesday) the emperor will be present at the annual house dinner of the royal yacht squadron at Cowes castle and during the week he is expected to sail his own yacht, the Meteor, during some of the most important races, particularly that of the queen's cup.

His stay is to be more or less of a private character and on Saturday, according to present arrangements he will return to Wilhelmshaven.

DIVIDED CABINET.

Canada and Her Welland Canal Tolls.

Some Ministers Want to Reduce the Rates,

While Others Are in Favor of Fighting It Out by an Appeal to England.

Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 1.—A cabinet council was held Saturday to consider the consequences of President Harrison exercising the power placed in his hands to retaliate on Canada for discrimination at the Welland canal.

Sir John Thompson and two of his colleagues also held a consultation at the Russell house last night.

It is said that the cabinet is divided on the question, one section being in favor of reversing the Canadian policy on the spot, and the other of appealing to England for sanction to make reprisals against the United States.

No decision has yet been reached.

Sir John Thompson leaves town to-day and it is rumored that he is to make an unannounced flying trip to Washington, and to avert for awhile the issue of the president's proclamation, in order to give Canada an opportunity of hearing from England.

THE SPRAGUE ESTATE.

The Final Dividend Has Been Declared.

Providence, R. I., Aug. 1.—The final dividend on the Sprague estate has been declared. The Spragues (the A. and W. Sprague manufacturers' company and ex-Senator Sprague, who was in congress from 1863 to 1875) failed in 1873 for $14,000,000 and were supposed to have property worth $20,000,000. During the height of the prosperity of the family, Senator Sprague made his famous marriage to the daughter of Secretary of the Treasury Salmon P. Chase.

When the hard times came in 1873, the Spragues suspended payment on $14,000,000 worth of notes.

A trust mortgage deed of the property was executed and the property has for 19 years been in third hands. They had paid 25 per cent. on the liabilities up to the final payment and this payment, now being made, is of 2 3-20 per cent., making 27 3-20 per cent. all told.

Thus the total, valued at $20,000,000 in 1873, has yielded but a little over $5,000,000, when it was supposed to be good for all debts against it.

Ex-Senator Sprague has now left only the Canonchet estate, but that property is valued at $250,000 to $300,000 and the family has begun to sell it to escape land poverty.

This estate was once sold to Moulton, the mutual friend in the Beecher-Tilton case, but after sharp fighting Mr. Sprague saved it.

SPORTING NEWS.

The Ryan-Wilkes Fight Stopped by Police.

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 1.—The fight to a finish for $3,500 between Tommy Ryan of Chicago, the champion welter weight, and Jack Wilkes of St. Louis, came off at Blume's hall, South Omaha, under the auspices of the Magic City club Saturday night. The men were in perfect form. They weighed in at the Athletic club at 12 o'clock, each tipping the scales at exactly 140 pounds. Before 9 o'clock there were 600 people in the hall. Police were on hand in full force and everything was orderly. In the pools Ryan sold at $25 to $15 early in the evening, but before the fighting commenced the betting dropped to $20 to $15, with plenty of takers. It was 9:45 before either of the fighters appeared.

Wilkes was the first to enter the ring, and Ryan followed almost immediately. Col. Savage, master of ceremonies, made a brief speech, urging that order be maintained, and saying the contest would be with four-ounce gloves. Dr. Ensor was chosen as referee by the club, but Wilkes objected and a squabble ensued. There was a long wait before Frank Parmelee was finally chosen as referee. George R. Clark was chosen timekeeper for Ryan and Al Cornish for Wilkes. The men stripped, put on the gloves and without further preliminaries came together. It was 10:40 when they shook hands.

Wilks forced the fighting at the start, but Ryan kept cool and drew first blood from Wilkes' nose in the sixth round, and the first knock-down in the eighth. After this Wilkes freshened up a bit and drew blood from Ryan's nose in the ninth round, after which both fought with caution. Wilkes' face was all battered up, and Ryan forced things, repeatedly punching his antagonist's sore nose; but Wilkes was game. In the seventeenth round the men had just rallied in the center of the ring when the police rushed over the ropes and stopped the fight, and Referee Parmalee declared the fight a draw, amid the howls of the crowd.

CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS

Pope Leo Writes a Letter on the Discoverer.

He Gives the Glory of the Cruise to the Catholic Church.

The Coming Celebration in the Eyes of the Pope is a Good Movement.

Rome, August 1.—The following is the text of the letter addressed by Leo XIII. to the archbishops and bishops of Spain, Italy and the two Americas, on the subject of Christopher Columbus:

"Venerable Brothers,

"Greeting and apostolic benediction.

"From the end of the fourth century, since a man from Liguria first landed, under the auspices of God, on the trans-Atlantic shores, humanity has been strongly inclined to celebrate with gratitude the recollection of this event. It would certainly not be an easy matter to find a more worthy cause to touch their hearts and to inflame their zeal. The event, in effect, is such in itself that no other epoch has seen a grander and more beautiful one accomplished by man. As to he who accomplished it, there are few who can be compared with him in greatness of soul and of genius. By his work a new world flashed forth from the unexplored ocean, thousands upon thousands of mortals were returned to the common society of the human race, led from their barbarous life to peacefulness and civilization, and, which is of much more importance, recalled from perdition to eternal life by the bestowal of the gifts which Jesus Christ brought to the world.

"Europe, astonished alike by the novelty and the prodigiousness of this unexpected event, understood little by little in due course of time what she owed to Columbus, when, by sending colonies to America, by frequent communications, by exchange of services, by the resources confided to the sea and received in return, there was discovered an accession of the most favorable nature possible to the knowledge of nature, to the reciprocal abundance of riches, with the result that the prestige of Europe increased enormously.

Propriety of Church Participation.

"Therefore, it would not be fitting amid these numerous testimonies of honor and in these concerts of felicitations that the church should maintain complete silence since, in accordance with her character and her institutions, she willingly approves and endeavors to favor all that appears, wherever it is, to be worthy of honor and praise. Undoubtedly she receives particular and supreme honors to the virtues preeminent in regard to morality, inasmuch as they united to the eternal salvation of souls; nevertheless, she does not despise the rest, neither does she abstain from esteeming them as they deserve; it is even her habit to favor with all her power and to always have in honor those who have well-merited of human society and who have passed to posterity.

"Certainly, God is admirable in his saints; but the vestiges of His divine virtue appear as imprinted in those in whom shines a superior force of soul and mind, for this elevation of heart and this spark of genius could only come from God, their author and protector.

"It is, in addition, an entirely special reason for which we believe we should commemorate in a grateful spirit this immortal event. It is that Columbus is one of us when one considers with what motive above all he undertook the plan of exploring the dark sea, and with what object he endeavored to realize this plan, one cannot doubt that the Catholic faith superlatively inspired the enterprise and its execution, so that by this title also humanity is not a little indebted to the church.

The Distinctive Idea of Columbus.

"There are, without doubt, many men of hardihood and full of experience who, before Christopher Columbus and after him, explored with persevering efforts, unknown lands across seas still more unknown. Their memory is celebrated, and will be so, by the renown and the recollection of their good deeds, seeing that they have extended the frontiers of science and of civilization, and that not at the price of slight efforts, but with a very exalted ardor of spirit, and often through extreme perils. It is not the less true that there is a very great difference between them and him of whom we speak. The eminently distinctive point in Columbus is that through the immense expanses of the ocean he followed an object more grand and more elevated than the others. This does not say, doubtless, that he was not in any way influenced by the very praiseworthy desire to be master of science, to well deserve the approval of society, or that he despised the glory, whose stimulant is ordinarily more sensitive to elevated minds, or that he was not at all looking to his personal interests. But above all these human reasons, that of religion was uppermost by a great deal in him; and it was this, without any doubt, which sustained his spirit and his will, and which frequently, in the midst of extreme difficulties, filled him with consolation. He learned in reality that his plan, his resolution profoundly carved in his heart, was to open access to the gospel in new lands and new seas.

The Spread of the Gospel.

"This may seem hardly probable to those who, concentrating all their care, all their thoughts on the present nature of things, as it is perceived by the senses, refuse to look upon greater benefits. But on the other hand it is the characteristic of eminent minds to prefer to elevate themselves higher, for they are better disposed than al others to seize the impulses and the inspirations of the divine faith. Certainly Columbus had united the study of nature to the study of religion, and he had conformed his mind to the precepts intimately drawn from the Catholic faith. It is thus that having learned by astronomy and ancient documents that beyond the limits of the known world there were in addition, toward the west, large tracts of territory unexplored up to that time by anybody, he considered in his mind the immense multitude of those who were plunged in lamentable darkness, subject to insensate rites and to the superstitions of senseless divinities. He considered that they miserably led a savage life, with ferocious customs; that more miserably still, they were wanting in all notion of the most important things, and that they were plunged in ignorance of the only true God. Thus, in considering this in himself he aimed first of all to propagate the name of Christian and the benefits of Christian charity in the west. As a fact, as soon as he presented himself to the sovereigns of Spain, Ferdinand and Isabella, he explained the cause for which they were not to fear taking a warm interest in the enterprise, as their glory would increase to the point of becoming immortal if they decided to carry the name and into such distant regions. And when not long afterwards his prayers were granted, he called to witness that he wished to obtain from God that these sovereigns, sustained by His help and His mercy, should persevere in causing the gospel to penetrate upon new shores and in new lands. He conceived in the same manner the plan of asking Alexander VI for apostolic men, by a letter in which these words are found: of asking Alexander VI. for apostolic men,

The Doctrines of Jesus Christ

"I hope that it will some day be given to me, with the help of God to propagate afar the very holy name of Jesus Christ and His gospel."

Also can one imagine him all filled with joy when he wrote to Raphael Sanchez, the first who from the Indies had returned to Lisbon, that immortal actions of grace must be rendered to God in that He had deigned to cause to prosper the enterprise so well; and that Jesus Christ could rejoice and triumph upon earth and in heaven for the coming salvation of innumerable people, who previously had been going to their ruin. Columbus also asked of Ferdinand and Isabella to permit only Catholic Christians to go to the new world, there to accelerate trade with the natives. He supports this move by the fact that, by his enterprise and efforts he has not sought for anything else than the glory and development of the Christian religion.

The Glory of Isabella.

This was what was perfectly known to Isabella, who better than any other person had penetrated the mind of such a great man. Much more, it appears that this same plan was fully adopted by this pious woman of great heart and manly mind. She bore witness, in effect, of Columbus, that in courageously giving himself up to the vast ocean, he realized, for the divine glory, a most signal enterprise, and to Columbus himself, when he had happily returned, she wrote that she esteemed as having been highly employed the resources which she had consecrated, and which she would still consecrate to the expedition in the Indies, in view of the fact that the propagation of Catholicism would result from them.

Also, if he had not inspired himself from a cause superior to human interests, where then would he have drawn the constancy and strength of soul to support him in what he was obliged to the end to endure and to submit to, that is to say: the unpropitous advice of the learned people, the repulses of princes, the tempests of the furious ocean, the continual watches during which he more than once risked losing his sight, to that adding the combats sustained against the barbarians, the infidelities of his friends, of his companions, the villainous conspiracies, the profidiousness of the envious, the calumnies of the traducers, the chains with which, after all, though innocent, he was loaded. It was inevitable that overwhelmed with a burden of trials so great and so intense he would have succumbed had he not sustained himself with the consciousness of fulfilling a very noble enterprise, which he conjectured would be glorious for the Christian name and salutary for an infinite multitude.

A Recompense to the Church.

And the enterprise so carried out is admirably illustrated by the events of that time. In effect, Columbus discovered America at about the period when a great tempest was going to unchain itself against the church. Inasmuch as that it is permitted by the course of events to appreciate the ways of Divine providence, it really seems that the man for whom Liguria honors herself was destined by a special plan of God to compensate Catholicism for the injury which it was going to suffer in Europe. To call the Indian race to Christianity this was without doubt the mission and the work of the church. This mission, commenced from the beginning, she continued to fulfill with an uninterrupted course to charity; and she still continues it, having advanced herself recently so far as the extremities of Patigonia.

As to Columbus, certain as he was of tracing out and of preparing the ways of the gospel, and fully absorbed in his thought it caused all his actions to converge to it, he not undertaking anything of any kind, but under the shield of religion and with the escort of piety. We shall recall in this, in reality, things which are well known, but which are none the less remarkable, in order to show forth the mind and the heart of this great man. Thus when, compelled by the Portuguese, by the Genoese, to leave without having obtained any result, he went to Spain. He matured the grand plan of projected discovery in the midst of the walls of a convent, and with the advice of a monk of the order of St. Francis D'Assises.

The Piety of the Explorer.

After seven years had revolved, when at last he goes to dare the ocean, he takes care that the expedition shall comply with the acts of spiritual expiration; he prays to the queen of heaven to assist the enterprise and to direct its course, and before giving the order to make sail, he invokes the August Divine Trinity. Then, once fairly at sea, while the crew murmurs, he maintains, under God's care, a calm constancy of mind. His plan manifests itself in the very names which he imposes on the new islands, and each time that he is called upon to land upon one of them, he worships the Almighty God and takes possession of it in the name of Jesus Christ. At whatever coast he approaches he has nothing more as his first idea than the planting on the shore of the sacred sign of the cross; and the divine name of the Redeemer, which he had sung so frequently on the open sea, to the sound of the murmuring waves, he is the first to make reverbrate in the new islands. In the same way, when he institutes the Spanish colony, he causes it to be commenced by the construction of a temple, where he first provides that the popular fetes shall be celebrated by august ceremonies.

Here then is what Columbus aimed at and what he accomplished when he went in search, over so great an expanse of sea and of land, of regions up to that time unexplored and uncultivated, but whose civilization, renown and riches were to rapidly attain that immense development which we see to-day.

The Divine Project Recognized.

In all this the magnitude of the event, the efficacy and the variety of the benefits which have resulted from it, tend assuredly to celebrate the memory of him who was the author of it, by a grateful remembrance and by all sorts of testimonials of honor; but in the first place, we must recognize and venerate particularly the divine project to which the discoverer of the new world was subservient and which he knowingly obeyed.

In order to celebrate worthily and in a manner suitable to the truth of the facts, the solemn anniversary of Columbus, the sacredness of religion must be united to the splendor of the civil pomp. This is why, as previously, at the first announcement of the event, public actions of grace were rendered to the providence of the Immortal God, upon the example which the supreme pontiff gave the same also now, in celebrating the recollection of the auspicious event. We esteem that we must do as much.

We decree to this effect that the day of October 12 or the following Sunday, if the respective diocesan bishops judge it to be opportune, that after the office of the day the solemn mass of the very Holy Trinity shall be celebrated in the cathedral and collegiate churches of Spain, Italy and the two Americas. In addition to these countries, we hope that upon the initiative of the bishops, as much may be done in the others, for it is fitting that all should concur in celebrating with piety and gratitude an event which has been profitable to all.

In the meantime, as a pledge of the celestial favors, and in testimony of our fraternal good will, we affectionately accord in the Lord the apostolic benediction to you venerable brothers, to your clergy and to your people.

Given at Rome, near St. Peters, July 16, of the year 1892, the fifteenth of our Pontificate.

CAMPAIGN CLUBS.

Grover Cleveland Writes to the People Concerning Them.

Paterson, N. J., Aug. 1.—Mr. Cleveland, in response to a letter apprising him of the organization of a democratic campaign club in Acquickanunk township Passaic county, of which Mr. James Clancy is president, wrote to that gentleman as follows:

Gray Gables, Buzzard's Bay, Mass., July 26, 1892.

"James Clancy, Esq.:

"Dear Sir—I was very glad to receive your letter of July 16. You may rest assured that I have by no means forgotten your visits to me. It is a source of great gratification to hear of you as prominent in the organization of a campaign club at your home in Passaic county, but it is quite in keeping with your democratic tendencies, and an illustration that you well understand the value of thorough democratic organization.

"I believe the success of the pending campaign depends largely upon the efforts of such clubs as that which has been started at your home. There is sometimes a lack of effectiveness in such organizations, arising out of a failure to make them working clubs. Their purpose should be, not merely to bring about the association of those already well grounded in the democratic faith, but to draw in new converts and to fix those who are wavering in their political preferences.

"Every member of such a club should, I think, consider himself a committee of one to bring within the influence of the club some person whose vote could not otherwise be secured to the democratic cause. I fully believe, however, that this new club established in Passaic county will consider these questions, and will not be wanting in any branch of effort.

"Very truly yours,

"Grover Cleveland."

HEADQUARTERS.

Asbury Park, Aug. 1.—The democratic national committee will open headquarters at the Howland hotel some time this week. Senator Josephs, of Philadelphia, has secured rooms subject to the approval of Wm. F. Harrity, chairman of the committee.

PRINCE BISMARCK.

A Rousing Reception Tendered at Jena.

Fifteen Thousand People Hear His Address.

Some Plain and Pointed References Concerning the Advisers of the Emperor.

Jena, Aug. 1.—Prince Bismarck, with his party, comprising Princess Bismarck and Count and Countess Herbert Bismarck, have arrived. A heavy thunder storm delayed his entry into Jena, but immediately after the storm had cleared the started for the Hotel Baer. The whole journey was a triumphal progress. The streets through which his carriage passed were massed with enthusiastic crowds, and the cheering was continuous. The prince was attired in civilian's dress. He uncovered his head, and repeatedly bowed his thanks for the demonstration in his honor. When he had arrived at the hotel the large crowd which had gathered in front of the building was so persistent in cheers and calls that he was twice obliged to appear on the balcony and express his thanks for the splendid reception which had been accorded him. He said that the knowledge that his services to the country were recognized by the German people had enabled him to bear many suspicions and shocks.

Sunday he made a tour of the town in a carriage, the university students in full strength forming a guard of honor and lining the whole route of his drive. Replying to an address presented by the representatives of the university, he sketched the events preceding the founding of the empire, and added that he had many difficulties to overcome with the late emperor—what he might call behind-the-scenes diplomacy.

The defeat of France, he said, was a necessity, because if she had not been humbled she would have hindered German unity. People said that the Bismarck policy had luck. He wished he could say that other ministers and chancellors were lucky. He advised his countrymen to produce a strong parliamentary majority, so as to prevent absolutism of government by bureaucracy. Some found fault, he said, with his criticisms, but he would continue to speak his mind whatever the consequences might be.

There were many thousands of visitors, and fervent enthusiasm prevailed everywhere. Early this morning a choir assembled under the windows of Prince Bismarck's room and sang Luther's hymn, "Ein Feste Burg." Later Prince Bismarck drove to the market platz, where 15,000 persons had assembled, being arranged in tiers around the square. A corps of students guarded the platform in the center of the square, to which Prince and Princess Bismarck and Count Herbert Bismarck and his bride were escorted by Rector Brockhaus, Prof. Haeckel and other chiefs of the university. The assemblage sang a number of patriotic songs and received the visitors with enthusiastic cheers. The cheering and singing subsiding, the burgomaster, in proposing the health of Prince Bismarck, contrasted the state of Germany at the beginning of the century with that of today, and alluded to the battle of Jena and the downfall of Prussia, concluding with the words: "After Bismarck no second Jena defeat is possible." A student then addressed the prince, saying among other things that all the students of Germany would carry forward his work.

Prince Bismarck, in reply, delivered an important political oration. He said: "I have sworn to found a protestant empire. It is therefore out of the question to try and rule with a Catholic party as the chief factor. We must take the present Catholic party as an example, and must imitate them, and form a united party against Catholic influence. I say nothing against the supremacy of the Catholic party or of the Catholic influences, or of foreign influence. It would even be preferable to have a papal nuncio in Berlin; so that irresponsible party leaders should not, as at present, give colored and untrustworthy reports to the pope. Referring to what he called the false policy of the government the ex-chancellor said that so fast as the government gains a Germanizing influence over the polls that influence is captured by the Catholic party. He concluded by comparing himself to Goethe's Goetz Von Berlichingen, who, although a faithful subject of the kaiser, refused to recognize the kaiser's commissioners, and when besieged gave free utterance to his opinions. He was to-day, he said, in the same position, a faithful servant of the kaiser, but he had the right to express the sharpest criticism of the kaiser's advisers.

The speech was received with enthusiastic cheers.

A commers, or beer-drinking entertainment, was then begun. Prince Bismarck lighted his long pipe, and conversed with reserve with those around him. The commers concluded, he returned to his hotel, driven through the principal streets, being everywhere enthusiastically greeted.

At a lunch given at the hotel in honor of Prince Bismarck, there were present the burgomaster, members of the University of Senate, students' delegates and municipal authorities. Prince Bismarck toasted the ladies in a humorous speech in which he said that he had received such proof of the convictions of the ladies that he had no fear for the future of the empire.

RYDER-HOXSIE CASE.

Circuit Court in Session in Syracuse.

An Important Legal Contest to Find Out Which Man Was Elected Sheriff.

Syracuse, N. Y., Aug. 1.—The extraordinary term of the circuit court summoned by Governor Flower on the 8th of July, to consider the Ryder-Hoxsie case, met to-day.

The case involves the title to the office of sheriff in this county, and the republican incumbent, Mr. Hoxsie, is determined to fight the case on every issue that can be raised.

Two orders have been made by the governor in the matter. The first reached here on the 8th of July, and in it July 25 was named as the day for the extraordinary term. This would have left only 17 days in which to summon a jury. The law requires 20 days, and immediately objection was made on that ground.

Another order superseding the first came from the governor, and this order provided for the opening of the court today. Notice of trial was served on behalf of Ryder, the democratic contestant, but acceptance of it was refused by Hoxsie's attorneys.

Late in June the case was set down for trial September 12 by one of the justices of this district, who adjourned his court until that day for that express purpose. The position was taken by Hoxsie's attorney in court to-day, that, in view of this fact, the present court could acquire no jurisdiction in the case, and that the gubernatorial order is of absolutely no effect.

ARCHBISHOP VAUGHN.

The Formal Investiture Took Place at Westminster.

London, August 1.—The formal investiture of Archbishop Vaughan, of Westminster, took place to-day. The ceremony was one of the most elaborate and impressive that has ever taken place outside of Rome, and will long be remembered by the favored few who were admitted to the sanctuary. The pallium used in the ceremony was brought to this city from Rome about a week ago by Monseignor Stonor. This is the first investiture of the kind that has taken place in London since Cardinal Pole was invested in the reign of Queen Mary.

ST. MARYS.

Gas and Oil News of Interest to the General Public.

St. Marys, O., Aug. 1.—(Special)—Liken & Bauer have completed their well on the Sturgeon farm, west of town, and it is showing for a pretty fair well. It was shot Thursday with 60 quarts and will perhaps make a 75-barrel producer. The result of this well will prove an incentive to further operations in this neighborhood, and the Graphic has it from a good source that considerable drilling will be done here the balance of the summer.

The Ohio Oil Co.'s No. 4 on the Mott farm will be completed in a few days, and a good well is expected.

The completion of the Dickman well by the Ohio Oil company, as stated in last week's Graphic, caused a sore disappointment, as the well came in a gasser, with no indication of the crude.

No other new wells of consequence have been completed, but a number are drilling, which will come in some time next week.

SOUSA LEAVES THE NAVY

No Longer at the Head of the Marine Band.

He Will go to Chicago at the Head of What Will Doubtless be a Splendid Organization.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 1.—To-day John Philip Sousa severs his connection with the United States Marine band.

Early in the spring of the present year a Chicago syndicate made overtures to Mr. Sousa with a view to securing his services as leader of a Chicago band. The negotiations hung fire for some time, but finally an arrangement was made, in pursuance of which Mr. Sousa procured his release from the navy department, taking effect to-day.

He will leave for New York in a few days, and will there commence the work of organizing his new band, which he says will be thoroughly drilled by the 21st of next October, at which time Mr. Sousa will make his bow before a Chicago audience upon the occasion of the dedication of the world's fair buildings.

The world's fair directory has also procured an option on the services of the new organization during the entire period of the world's fair.

How's Your Liver?

Is the Oriental salutation, knowing that good health cannot exist without a healthy Liver. When the Liver is torpid the Bowels are sluggish and constipated, the food lies in the stomach undigested, poisoning the blood; frequent headache ensues; a feeling of lassitude, despondency and nervousness indicate how the whole system is deranged. Simmons Liver Regulator has been the means of restoring more people to health and happiness by giving them a healthy Liver than any agency known on earth. It acts with extraordinary power and efficacy.

NEVER BEEN DISAPPOINTED,

As a general family remedy for dyspepsia, Torpid Liver, Constipation, etc., I hardly ever use anything else, and have never been disappointed in the effect produced; it seems to be almost a perfect cure for all diseases of the Stomach and Bowels.

The annals of a French academy of science tell of a tailor's adventure with a thunderbolt. He lived in a house provided with two chimneys, one for a fireplace and the other for a stove, the latter not in use. During a thunderstorm a tremendous report was heard, and everybody thought that the house had been struck by lightning. Instantly a blue flaming ball dropped into the fireplace and rolled out into the room, seemingly about six inches above the floor. The excited tailor ran around the room, the ball of fire playing about his feet. Suddenly it rose above his head and moved off toward the stovepipe hole in the ceiling, which had a piece of paper pasted over it. The ball moved straight through the paper and up the chimney. When near the top it exploded, and tore the chimney into thousands of fragments. The sight of the debris left by the explosion showed the family what would have been the consequences had it exploded while on its gyrating passage through the room.

A new and most important element in the recent British elections was the strength and influence of the "cyclist" vote. The Bicycle Touring club, which numbers 20,000 members, with officers in every town and village, put forth strenuous efforts to obtain from each parliamentary candidate a pledge to vote in favor of making the carrying of lights by all vehicles at night compulsory. Many a close contest was decided on this point, for there are half a million riders of bicycles in the United Kingdom and Lord Albemarle has undertaken to raise the question in the house of lords. There is a precedent here that will probably not be lost sight of by American wheelmen. And considering the general charcter of bicycle-riders a law favored by the L. A. W. of America ought to be a good law indeed.

There are usually two versions of every story, and not infrequently, it appears, there is another side to the tales of assault told by unprotected females traveling in British railway carriages. Recently at Durham, England, where a guard was on trial for misusing a woman passenger on the Northwestern railway, the jury were so convinced of the falsity of the accusation that they stopped the case. Again, at the Berkshire quarter sessions a clergyman was acquitted, amid loud applause, of assaulting a girl who was traveling on the Newbury line. The outcome of the latter case will be gratifying to believers in clerical virtue, but it would seem to indicate the necessity for unprotected male travelers on the railroads of the tight little isle to conduct themselves with all possible discretion or to travel with chaperons.

VOTE FOR GEORGE B. HULL.

Democratic Candidate for Councilman in the Seventh Ward.

On next Friday the special election will be held in the Seventh ward to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of R. P. Swain. The democratic nominee is Mr. George B. Hull, and it is no disparagement to the many worthy residents of the ward to say that a more fitting nomination could not be made. Mr. Hull has had experience in the council, is actively egnaged in business as a member of the firm of Brown, Eager & Hull, is a taxpayer, and is thoroughly acquainted with the needs of the city. While Mr. Hull is a democrat, he is also a public-spirited citizen, and so far as the rest of the term is concerned, but little if any politics has to be considered. What is needed now is not so much politics as business, and Mr. Hull has the requirements of this character.

Vote for George B. Hull.

DEATH OF CHARLES HARRISON

At Cincinnati—He Was a Bright Light in the Newspaper Profession.

The death of Charles Harrison, formerly editor of the Commercial of this city, of Bright's disease, at Cincinnati, Saturday, removes from the sphere of journalism one of the brightest minds and ablest writers in this country.

Personally Mr. Harrison was a jovial, whole-souled, good fellow with a heart as warm as his mind was broad. His death is sincerely mourned by those who knew him here.

He was born in New York 48 years ago, where he received a first-class education. He studied law and was admitted to the bar, but finally drifted into the newspaper business, after losing a fortune which he made in Wall street.

He was a member of the Toledo Press club and the delegate from the club to the first meeting of the League of International Press clubs, held in Pittsburg two years ago.

SUIT FOR STAVES

Filed in Common Pleas Court—Sheriff Stuart in Possession.

On Saturday afternoon there was a suit filed in common pleas court by John Bradley, John D. Cameron and James McBurney against James W. Armstead, to secure possession of 6,000 staves.

The plaintiffs are engaged in the stave business at Hamilton, Ontario, Can.

In their petition they set up that on July 12, 1892, the defendant took possession of the staves, and that the same were being wrongfully detained by them. Judgment of $200 damages were also asked.

The staves were taken by Constable Armstead, in an action in attachment justice court of Orcutt against McRea.

The staves it seems were bought in the southern part of the state by the plaintiffs in this suit and shipped to Toledo. McRea owed Orcutt money and Orcutt attached the staves as McRea's property. Sheriff Stuart served the summons and took possession of the staves.

THE CIRCUIT JUDGESHIP.

Why Should Not Judge Scribner Succeed Himself?

The meeting of the democratic judicial circuit court committee brings to the notice of the public the fact that the term of Judge Charles H. Scribner is soon to expire, and a successor must be elected at the November election. Of course, on the part of the democracy comprising the eight counties in the district, no other gentleman is thought of for the position than Mr. Scribner, and the Bee believes that the great majority of republicans are of the opinion that he should succeed himself.

It has been the pride of all attorneys, as well as citizens in general, that the circuit bench in this district is not excelled by any in the state and it should be kept so. There is nothing to be gained in a political way by a change, except to give some aspirant a place, since two of the three judges are republicans. The court, at least, should be kept aloof from politics, and therefore Judge Scribner ought to be renominated and elected without opposition. This would give great satisfaction to the people.

WINTER WHEAT.

Receipts Lighter This Year Than Last—A Comparison.

The following facts as to the receipts of winter wheat are gleaned from the grain circular of C. A. King & Co.:

July receipts of winter wheat were somewhat smaller than last year. The crop is smaller and the weather has not been as favorable for threshing. St. Louis has been relatively high on July and received nearly as much as a year ago. Chicago has received very little winter wheat this season. August receipts are generally the largest, but they will be much smaller here than last year. The total winter wheat crop is about the same as in 1889 and 1884. Receipts at Toledo, St. Louis and Baltimore in recent years compare as follows:

SHOT BY A BURGLAR.

August Redding, of West Toledo, Dying.

He Tried to Find Out Who Was Thieving at the Store and Grapples With a Man in the Dark.

Early yesterday morning August Redding was shot at his place of business in West Toledo by a burglar. It seems there had been considerable thieving going on and Mr. Redding decided to find out who was doing it. He went to the store at night and throwing a quilt about him lay down near the door to watch.

About 2 o'clock he heard footsteps approaching. A man came up to the screen door, opened it and entered. Redding, who had failed to arm himself with a revolver, jumped on the intruder. The burglar, however, was armed, and drawing a revolver fired two shots at Mr. Redding. One bullet took effect and the unfortunate man fell on the floor in a pool of blood.

The shots attracted the attention of the neighbors, and several men rushed to the scene of the shooting. They placed Mr. Redding on a cot and carried him to his home across the street. Doctors were summoned, and on making an examination they found that the bullet had penetrated the intestines.

He will not live and the end is expected every minute as the Bee goes to press.

The burglar made good his escape.

AN INNOVATION.

This is Indeed the Workingman's Era.

Several of the Members of the Carpenters' and Builders' Association Will Take Their Employees to Put-in-Bay.

Toledo has been rightly called the Workingman's Paradise, and that it is no misnomer is evidenced by the fact that he not only does not have to ask for a holiday, as in days gone by, but is given one without the trouble of asking, and the employers foot the bills. At least that is the era that is being introduced by the individual members of the Carpenters' and Builders' association. Next Saturday Messrs. Bentley, Friend, F. & J. Files, Witzman, Cavanaugh, Arnsman Bros., Sheehy & Dirkman, Jackson, Lee, Brown, Ravel, Malone and others will take their employes and their families to Put-in-Bay on the City of Toledo.

This is an innovation that cannot be too much encouraged, and the thoughtfulness and liberality of these gentlemen is worthy of all praise.

WHISKY COCKTAIL.

"Wha' do I stick t' old Cocktail fer, thet's stone blind, an' ud lope all day in th' shade o' a cottonwood tree?"

Well, Curly, I reckon thet's whut he would, an' his rider wouldn't fan 'im none, neither. Cocktail's a played out cow pony, an' nobody knows it better 'n th' man he's carried faithful through thic an' thin—but mostly through the thick o' trouble—for ten good years.

Thet's a long life fer a cow horse. Mos' of 'em gits a leg snapped off in a prairie dog hole, er a kink in th' neck from an' awk'ard throw o' th' rope, er catches a header down a blind coulee after a red steer thet's doubled on 'im, long before thet, but Cocktail's slipped through 'em all, an' is jest plumb wore out like his master.

"Better'n a dozen dead cow hands?" I don't know, Curly. Every winter I swear I'll give up twinin', but when spring comes, an' th' roundup begins, somehow I go t' poundin' th' bunch grass ag'in. But it ain't whut it use' t' be. Th' nights is colder, an' th' watch on night herd is a heap longer; an' when I'm let in fer a plunge into swimmin' water, flounderin' round fer half a day crossin' a herd, I don't like it.

But about Cocktail, Curly. He was a dandy, when I got 'im under me now, dandy, when I got 'im o' Dick Hallett ten years ago. Lord! I can seem t' feel 'im under me now, every nerve in his plucky little carcass on th' strain. He wa'nt no pitcher, but fer clean, sandy grit an' bottom, he held over any bronco I ever threw my leg aside.

Did ye ever hear how he got blind, Curly?

'Twas when I was foreman o' th' "Triangle" an' was out huntin' strays one time. It ud been a hot summer, an' as it cooled some devilish mischief seemed t' o' broke loose, fer th' country was blazin' with fires, an' th' range goin' t' th' dogs.

I'd been dodgin' round, keepin' t' wind'ard of 'em, an' ransackin' th' coulees fer my bunch o' cow ponies, aimin' t' make th' "S. H." by night; an' as I got along thet way I found thet th' fires was heavier, an' all seemed t' be runnin' in thet d'rection, an' I give like the look, an' as I rode down th' hill I liked it a blamed sight worse. I'd left three fires creepin' toward th' bunch o' log houses under th' hill, an' now t' th' south I saw a fourth—not grass this time, but tall timber!

"Good Lord!" sez I, "th' place is shet in!" An' jest then out o' th' house flew Dan Mifflin's wife, all pale an' scared lookin'.

"Oh, Jess!" sez she. "I'm so glad t' see ye! Ther's trouble comin', an' I'm here all alone with Daisy."

Now, Daisy was Dan Mifflin's baby. A little thing that hadn't hardly got its eyes open, but ther' wasn't a man on th' river as didn't know thet big Dan had a young un in th' nest at th' "Sweet Home," an' I don't stretch it none t' say thet ther' wasn't a man among 'em thet wouldn't a done—well, anything thet a man could do, fer th' mother er th' kid. But I didn't stop fer no compliments.

"Wher's Dan at?" sez I short an' sharp.

"Gone t' Sublette with the beef herd," sez she.

"Wher's the rest o' th' boys?"

"Fightin' fires in th' upper basin."

"Any horses here?"

"Not one! Dan left me Blizzard, but he's jumped th' corral an' lit out."

"Then ther's only one thing fer it. Git your baby an' jump up behind me, quick."

It didn't take a minute. Th' little woman jest dashed an' jumped into th' house an' out ag'in with one o' Dan's old hats on 'er head an' a white, woolly bundle in 'er arms, thet she tossed up to me, while she climbed up behind.

"Never mind," sez I, "I'll hold it. You'll want both o' yer hands t' hang on with." Lord! I never shall forgit what a queer feelin' thet soft nestlin' little armful gave me as I snuggled it close t' my old flannel shirt an' gave my horse th' rein.

By this time th' flames was lappin' th' tops o' th' nearest pine trees, an' I saw thet I must strike t' th' north, an' strike quick! I put Cocktail at th' bluff—not waitin' t' go round by th' trail—an' ye ought t' seen thet broncho climb! 'Twas nigh about straight up, but he breasted it like it was a bit o' level plain, without as much as a cactus on it.

Up we went! But at th' top I drew in. What hed bin three fires when I follered th' trail betwixt 'em half an hour before was roarin' on in one solid mass o' flame, less'n a quarter o' a mile from wher' we stood.

I looked round fer a minute, an' saw thet my only chance was t' clear it. My coat was tied on th' back o' th' saddle, an' I loosened it an' wrapped Mrs. Mifflin's head up in it, an' I reckoned thet th' kid—which seemed a solid chunk o' flannel—ud be safe enough, but ther' was Cocktail t' be blinded. I dragged th' big handkerchief off o' my neck an' tied it round his eyes, an' then I giv' th' word. Not a touch o' steel er leather, jest th' word t' go!—an' he went!

Well, 'twas a close thing, but we made it. The baby, bless 'er! was asleep in 'er bundle o' clo'es; I was all right, only fer my face an' hands bein' scorched an' my hair mostly singed off, an' Mrs. Mifflin was safe, but her cotton gown was afire an' it was helpin' her to put that out thet I fergot t' tear th' burnin' rag o' handkerchief off o' poor Cocktail till it was too late an' his eyes was burnt plumb out! An' when I d'd loose it an' he laid his head on my shoulder with a pitiful whinny fer help, Lord! how it cut me t' th' very heart!

"Hurt 'im fer a cow horse?" Well, yes, it did. But, ye see, as long as th' pain lasted th' poor brute seemed t' sort o' cling t' me, an'—well, I ain't never hed th' heart t' shake 'im. He loved th' feel o' th' bunch grass under his feet an' th' chase fer a wild steer, an' after a while his ears seemed t' sort o' take th' place o' eyes, an' he'd make as quick a turn as any horse on the river.

But I ain't never fergive myself fer my cussed meanness a-fergettin' 'im thet day he carried me through th' big fire.—New York World.

UNGUARDED GATES.

Wide open and unguarded stand our gates,
Named of the four winds, North, South, East and West;
Portals that lead to an enchanted land
Of cities, forests, fields of living gold,
Vast prairies, lordly summits touched with snow,
Majestic rivers sweeping proudly past
The Arab's date palm and the Norseman's pine—
A realm wherein are fruits of every zone,
Airs of all climes, for lo! throughout the year
The red rose blossoms somewhere—a rich land,
A later eden planted in the wilds,
With not an inch of earth within its bound
But if a slave's foot press it sets him free!
Here, it is written, Toil shall have its wage,
And Honor honor, and the humblest man
Stand level with the highest in the law.
Of such a land have men in dungeons dreamed,
And with the vision brightening in their eyes
Gone smiling to the fagot and the sword.

Wide open and unguarded stand our gates,
And through them presses a wild, motley throng—
Men from the Volga and the Tartar steppes,
Featureless figures of the Hoang-Ho,
Malayan, Scythian, Teuton, Kelt and Slav,
Flying the Old World's poverty and scorn;
These bringing with them unknown gods and rites,
Those, tiger passions, here to stretch their claws.
In street and alley what strange tongues are these,
Accents of menace alien to our air,
Voices that once the Tower of Babel knew!
O Liberty, white Goddess! is it well
To leave the gates unguarded? On thy breast
Fold Sorrow's children, soothe the hurts of fate,
Lift the down-trodden, but with hand of steel
Stay those who to thy sacred portals come
To waste the gifts of freedom. Have a care
Lest from thy brow the clustered stars be torn
And trampled in the dust. For so of old
The thronging Goth and Vandal trampled Rome,
And where the temples of the Caesars stood
The lean wolf unmolested made her lair.

Henry Stanley's stepfather, a Welshman named Watkin James, a gray-haired man of seventy years, is one of the locked-out workmen at Homestead. He is aged and poor and the Stanleys are not claiming him at all.

A dispatch reads: "The president has approved the act to enforce reciprocal commercial relations between the United States and Canada.," which drives one to the dictionary to see if the old definition of reciprocity has been revised.

Manager Frick's physician reports his patient as "hearty and happy." That he is rapidly recovering everyone will rejoice, but that he can be in a "happy" frame of mind will be incomprehensible to a good many, supposing him to be a man with any human sensibilities whatever.

Pope Leo, in his letter on Columbus to the church in Spain, Italy and the Americas, gives prominence, in stately language, to the sentiment that actuated the great discoverer and that moved Ferdinand and Issabella to espouse his cause. He gives Isabella the meed of glory that the "Circles" have insisted belonged to her, according to all the teachings of history.

The senate is vainly trying to get together a quorum, without which it is not able to adjourn. Legislation, under such conditions, is apt to be not very well considered, once it is possible to assemble the number requisite for the passage of bills that cannot lie over. The public are weary, also, as well as the members. The session of the senate about to expire has left little on record of honor to itself or of aid to the country.

The House has gotten itself into a pretty snarl on the world's fair appropriation question. The sentiment of the people has been fully expressed in the newspapers, and the majority of them are in favor of the appropriation, and deprecate the mess that has been made of it. A liberal sum from the government, carefully and judicially expended, and the fair open Sundays under certain arrangements to preserve order and decorum, is the sense of the majority of the people.

The builders' strike in New York involves ten thousand laborers, many of whom are skilled workmen. The "broad aegis of protection" which is advertised to uplift the cause of the workingmen in every department of labor, stands sadly in need of repairs. Under its "beneficent workings," labor isn't even permitted to protect itself. Yet, the man or woman in the untaxed industries has the best of it, as is shown by Senator Carlisle's report on the findings of the senate investigating committee.

If Gen. Snowden considered the "treason, rebellion and revolution" at Homestead such as demanded the torturing of a man into unconsciousness for reckless and rebellious utterance, what would Gen. Snowden consider the proper thing to do with unruly men in the face of an actual and terrible conflict, such as the country has yet fresh in its memory? If an emergency—great enough, to be sure, but small by comparison—transforms an officer into a monster of cruelty, what would the greater event do?

Paying Little Business.

A while ago the chief tune of the organs how the Gladstonians (they are the free traders of England) were running the democratic campaign. Democrats asked for evidence in English newspapers; they give our affairs little or no attention, and the answer come from the chief tooter like this:

English newspapers have taken the advice of American democrats and quit their fulsome eulogies of Cleveland and the Chicago platform. They were plainly told they "were hurting their friends." But now and then one breaks out in rejoicing at the good time coming.

That "Unanimous Report."

Senator Carlisle was one of the senate committee to investigate the workings of the new tariff law. Protection organs have been saying that the report of the committee was unanimous in the conclusion that the McKinley law had raised the wage rate and lowered the price of commodities. Mr. Carlisle, from his place in the senate, Friday, took occasion to speak for himself. He finds that in fifteen leading unprotected industries the increase in wages has been 75-00 of 1 per cent.; in fifteen leading protected industries the decrease has been 89-100 of one per cent. So far as the argument concerning the increase in cost of dutiable goods is concerned, it goes for nil. Every householder knows for himself or herself, whether iron and steel utensils, copper, cutlery, glassware, building material, carpets and wool goods have increased in price, or diminished. No visionary guess work by campaign shriekers is necessary.

HEAVY FAILURE.

A Quarter of a Million Cash in New Orleans.

New Orleans, Aug. 1.—It was learned late last night that the large cotton factorage and commission firm of Bickham & Moore failed Saturday for over a quarter of a million dollars.

The house was founded many years ago by the late Richard Pritchard, then president of the New Orleans, Jackson & Great Northern railroad, now the Chicago, St. Louis & New Orleans, a part of the Illinois Central system.

The failure will be publicly announced to-day and until then no one can tell what the assets are.

OFF FOR THEIR HOMES

Members of the Second Regiment, O. N. G.,

Break Camp After an Enjoyable Week.

Another Reception—Toledo Cadets and Capt. Austin's Division Visit Camp—One Week Not Enough for Camp.

Camp Forsyth is finished and the Second regiment, which spent a very pleasant and profitable week at Presque Isle, is now scattered to the various cities from which its companies came. The men had breakfast early this morning, and immediately after the work of demolishing camp began. The work was quickly and quietly done, and in less than an hour the pretty tented village was gone, and only piles of baggage, lumber and straw were left to mark the spot.

The regiment came to the city on the morning boat, at once marched to the T., C. & C. depot on the East Side, where their special train was awaiting them and left as soon as the troops were on board.

The only exceptions were Companies E from Tiffin, and B from Upper Sandusky, who left over the Pennsylvania and Hocking Valley roads respectively. Company C, Lima, left camp early, marched to the street car line at Ironville, by which route they were brought to the city, and they then boarded the steamer Idlewild for a trip to Star Island. They will return to-night, and at once leave for home. Many of the officers will also scatter in different directions.

This camp at Presque Isle has been a most successful one, and both officers and men are well pleased. They have been treated hospitably by Toledo people, and assured a welcome should they ever return.

The exceedingly hot weather during the first part of last week interfered somewhat with drill, and the rain was also an unpleasant feature, but notwithstanding all this the camp was exceptionally healthy and free from sickness and the work that was done by the men showed that the Second is a very efficient regiment and would be equal to any emergency.

On Saturday two regimental drills were executed with precision and celerity. These are the first regimental drills held by any regiment in the state, under the new drill regulations and Col. Collins was much pleased at their success.

Immense crowds of Toledo people and outside excursionists visited Presque Isle and the camp yesterday and made things lively, yet the men conducted themselves in a quiet and orderly manner, and there was no trouble of any description.

The last night in camp is usually the time for many larks, but last night passed off quietly and most of the men retired early.

Chaplain Moore held divine services in front of headquarters yesterday morning, and most of the regiment attended.

In the afternoon regimental parade was held shortly after 3 o'clock in order to allow the excursionists a chance to witness it and return to the city in time to get their trains for home.

The Toledo Cadets made a run to the island on their wheels in the afternoon, and immediately after regimental drill they gave an exhibition drill on their bicycles. The parade ground is a stubble field and very rough, but the boys handled their wheels as though on a paved street, and moved in excellent time and made a company front that was nearly perfect. This drill was witnessed by a large crowd and brought forth much applause.

The Lima City Guards then gave an exhibition drill in the grove. This is the crack drill company of the regiment and deserves much praise.

The entire regiment leaves Toledo with the best wishes of its citizens for its success, and there is little doubt but that it will soon rank second to none is the state.

A Delightful Affair.

One of the pleasantest incidents of the camp occurred Saturday evening in company G, and it is just such an affair that goes to hold a company together and give them the right spirit. Mrs. Capt. Kuert and Mrs. Lieut. Wilson were responsible for the gathering, and their success as entertainers was marked. They prepared an elegant lunch for the members and ex-members of Company G. The mess tent was decorated with Japanese lanterns, and about 9 o'clock the whole company was seated at the long table. Col. Howe, Lieut.-Col. Collins and Adjutant Campbell are ex-members of this company, and were present, besides about a half dozen invited guests. During the evening short talks were made by Col. Howe, Col. Collins, Adjutant Campbell, Capt. Kuert, Wm. S. Robinson and Blacque Wilson, and the gathering disbanded after three cheers for the ladies of the company. The company is to be congratulated upon having officers with such wives as Mrs. Kuert and Mrs. Wilson.

Taps.

Col. Brick says that the "Dickey" is dead.

Maj. ClenDening and wife left this morning for Detroit.

Surgeon Paul's son Edward will go into the hospital corps next year.

Mr. Ralph Coutts, of the Kenton Daily News, was in camp Saturday.

Col. Howe leaves this evening for the camp of the Sixteenth regiment at Fremont.

Miss Nellie Myers, of Tiffin, was the guest of Major Koutzman and family over Sunday.

More than a thousand visitors were fed at headquarters and by the different companies yesterday.

Among the visitors at camp yesterday was Toledo division, K. of P., under command of Capt. Austin.

Mr. Elmer Dale was on hand with his steam yacht yesterday and took several parties of officers and ladies for a ride down the bay.

The Upper Sandusky band visited camp yesterday with an excursion from that city, and they gave headquarters a serenade in the afternoon.

"Snowball," a young southern darkey, who is the mascot of the regiment, arrived in camp yesterday, being delayed somewhat in his trip from Atlanta.

Capt. Curll and Lieuts. Lysle and Brown, of Company E, Tiffin, were before the examining board yesterday and passed a very creditable examination. The examining board is composed of Capt. Kuert, Capt. Kirk and Adjutant Campbell.

At the banquet given to Comanp G, Saturday evening, Col. Howe publicly thanked the Bee for its work in behalf of the national guard and stated that he considered it an important factor in the success of the Second regiment.

It is conceded by the officers of every regiment of the national guard that one week's time is too short for camp. It takes the men nearly that long to settle down, and in another week they could learn more than in half a dozen camps. The state should be more liberal and appropriate enough for a two weeks' camp.

The Gendron Iron Wheel company deserve much praise for the bicycles they have furnished the Toledo Cadets to be used for military purposes. Yesterday about 30 of that company rode to Presque Isle on their wheels, and immediately after their arrival gave an exhibition drill on them. The drilling was done on the parade ground, which is a very rough stubble field, and one on which any wheelman might hesitate to ride. Therethe company executed all the movements of a cavalry troop, wheeling and turning in both slow and fast time. The ground could hardly have been more difficult to ride on, yet these Gendron wheels came out unscathed.

Killed the Ranch Keeper.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 1.—A Mexican boy brought the news yesterday to Santa Ana of the murder of a man named McKelvey, who was taking care of Modjeska's ranch in San Diego canon. McKelvey was alone, and there are no details. Modjeska usually spends her summer vacation on this ranch.

EMANCIPATION DAY.

Colored People Celebrating a Great Event in Their History.

Rockford, Ill., August 1.—The colored residents of this city are holding high carnival to-day in commemoration of the issuing of the Emancipation Proclamation, which document was made public just 30 years ago the coming 1st of January.

Picnics are being held to-day at various places near the city, and to-night the colored people will gather in several of the principal halls and churches and listen to orations by prominent colored orators from all parts of the country.

The proceeds of the various events of the day and evening will be devoted to the erection of a new African Methodist church.

The colored people say that, in view of the fact that the Emancipation Proclamation meant far more for them than the Declaration of Independence did for the white race, they intend to make the celebration a regular event in the future, and to adopt measures calculated to make the celebration universal throughout the country.

TO VALUE RAILROADS.

Indianapolis, Aug. 1.—The state board of equalization, consisting of the governor, secretary and auditor of state, and the two tax commissioners, will meet to-day in a 40-days' session for the purpose of fixing valuations of railroads and other corporations as a basis of taxation. Although a number of suits have been filed to prevent the collection of the last assessment, the democratic members of the board will not be deterred in the least, and the values fixed by the last meeting will not be materially changed.

A POWERFUL SERMON

Preached Sunday Morning by Rev. Updyke,

In Which He Defined the Term "Backsliding" and Described the People He Would Not Pray For.

It is the custom of the members of the Church of Christ to begin the Sabbath morning service by partaking of the Lord's Supper. Yesterday morning the communion and song services occupied so much time that Rev. Updyke had only 25 minutes for his sermon. He is a rapid, as well as impressive speaker, however, and stated more facts and quoted more scripture in the short time allotted him, than most men could have done in an hour. He took his text from the 6th chapter of John, verses 67, 68 and 69. He said that Christ, the great preacher, could, had he desired, have catered to popular sentiment, as none of the preachers of to-day, who are thirsting after notoriety, are able to do. He knew, as he looked in the faces of his audience, what would be pleasing to each one. But he did not use the power given him, to please. He spoke the truth. Told of a day of judgment, as well as a day of salvation. And they were offended, and went away, one after the other, until none were left, except the little handful of disciples.

The speaker said that human nature has not changed. In these days the crowds gather, and listen as long as honied words fall from the preacher's lips. But they soon take offense, and go away, and none are left except the few faithful who ask, "To whom shall we go? thou hast the words of eternal life." It is well for the ministers of God, that there are these faithful "staybys."

Rev. Updyke defined the backslider, as a person who goes back from a point. He does not believe that one can be born again and again spiritually. It is as much an impossibility as to be reborn in the physical sense. There is such a thing as an occasional slip from the straight and narrow path. God will not hold people responsible for a hasty act for which they truly repent. But for continued sinning, for the person who gets away from Christ, and stays away, who sins so long and so much that he would have to be born again, there is no salvation. He could no more have a spiritual rebirth than a physical. These are the people for whom it is useless to pray. Why pray for people who do not want your prayers? Why ask God to save people who do not want to be saved, who will not be saved? It is a sheer waste of time. Intercede with prayers and tears for those who are repentent and desire salvation. For the willful sinner there is no hope.

The minister asked those who had sinned since becoming Christians to hold up their hands, and a good many went up. He said that earth was no place for people who have no sin, heaven is their home. And he didn't believe there would be much use for them there, either, for if we say we have no sin we lie and the truth is not in us.

The sermon closed with an earnest appeal to those who had not yet become Christians to delay no longer.

The singing of Prof. J. E. Hawes is one of the pleasant features of the services, and his rendition of the solos, "The Burden-Bearer," and "Tempted and Led Astray," was especially beautiful.

The meetings will continue during the week, and next Sunday afternoon Rev. Updyke will deliver a lecture to ladies, only.

THROUGH A TELESCOPE.

A Peep at the Planet Mars from the Lick.

A Wonderful Sky Searcher at the Observatory on the Pacific Coast.

Lick Observatory, Cal., Aug. 1.—The giant telescope presented to the university of California by James Lick is making a record for itself during the present opposition of Mars.

For several days observations of a most valuable character have been obtained by the Mount Hamilton astronomers. The near approach of the planet and its consequent brilliancy and size at this time have enabled the observers to utilize the full powers of the instrument with most interesting results.

Drawings by all the astronomers exhibit numerous changes in its principal characteristics since the celebrated sketches made by the Milanese astronomer Schiaparelli.

Many of his most fanciful details are shown to have no existence in reality. None of the so-called "canals" are doubled or "germinated" as he depicted them.

All of these curious streaks, whatever they may be, are broad stripes and not narrow lines, just as they were seen through the Lick telescope two years ago.

This will be a bitter disappointment to many visionary theorists who have found in the existence of these "canals," and particularly in the announcement that all were seen to be doubled, most indisputable evidence that Mars was inhabited by human beings.

The most startling of all Mount Hamilton observations are those made on the two tiny moons of the planet, which was first discovered by Asaph Hall is Washington, during the opposition of 1877, and which have been seen at brief intervals and only on the very largest telescopes.

Not only have these little attendants (beyond odds the faintest planetary bodies to be seen anywhere in the sky), been in plain view for the best part of the month, but of late astronomers have regularly observed their eclipses in the shadow of Mars.

JUDGE FOX APPOINTED.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 1.—Governor Chase has decided to appoint Judge Henry G. Fox, of Wayne county, to the position on the appellate court bench made vacant by the death of Judge Milton Robinson, of Anderson. Fox was a candidate against the deceased judge before the Ft. Wayne convention, and came within 20 votes of being nominated. Though Hiram Brownlee, of Marion, and John Lovett, of Madison, are candidates, the state central committee favors Fox.

REGARDING THE RUMOR

That the C., H. & D. Directors Are in Arrears

In the Matter of Keeping Up the Sinking Fund—Mr. Geo. E. Pomeroy Says That There is Plenty of Money to Fix Things Satisfactorily.

A Bee called on Geo. E. Pomeroy, one of the C., H. & D. directors, to ask about the rumor regarding the course of the present directors.

It seems that certain interested parties have notified the directors that if they fail to live up to the road's formation papers and do not maintain the sinking fund, the courts will be appealed to.

Under the provisions of the road's charter the directors were authorized to start and keep up such a fund, which was to be devoted to the retiring of the first-mortgage bonds. In other words, it was a plan by which the first bonds would be lifted and the seconds would become first. It has been the practice to at least purchase $10,000 worth of these every six months.

Now it is alleged that the directors are not paying into the fund. The second bondholders do not like the situation, as the non-removal of the first bonds does not allow the second bonds to become more valuable.

A number of the second bondholders called on the directors and stated their grievance.

The reply was that they had failed to follow the former plan, as the money was necessary for the construction of the road's betterments and other disbursements. All the funds were used for that purpose. This was not deemed satisfactory, and the holders this week decided to become more belligerent, and insist on the agreement being carried out. The gentlemn quietly announced that if the matter is not fixed up suit will be begun at once compelling them to do so.

Speaking of the matter, Mr. Pomeroy said that no trouble was expected. If the matter of paying into the sinking fund had been neglected it could easily be remedied ,as the company had plenty of money to do it. The road, he said, was never paying as well as it is at present.

F. B. Swayne was seen by a Bee in the matter and he said: "I don't know anything about the affair, but it seems to me there is a great deal of smoke from very little fire. The explosion in the Enquirer to the effect that the directors had failed to apply the amount which should have been applied to relieve second mortgage bonds was only $20,000, which is a mere trifle, and it is clearly evident that the story is given out to create a sensation."

THE INVESTIGATION.

The Sub-Committee Has Completed Its Work.

Five Questions Bearing on the Strike and Following Trouble at Homestead.

Washington, Aug. 1.—Representative Oates, chairman of the sub-committee on judiciary, which visited Homestead to investigate the recent troubles between the strikers and the Carnegie company, has completed a report on the evidence taken and will submit it to his colleagues on the snb-committee soon.

If approved by them the report will then be laid before the full committee for adoption. No report has been made on the testimony of the Pinkertons, as it is not ye decided whether or not the investigation, so far as relates to that body, will be continued.

Col. Oates' report incorporates five subjects, which are thoroughly discussed, as follows:

1. Whether the reductions of the scale of wages of the Carnegie employes were justifiable.
2. Whether the treatment of the employes was kind and just.
3. Whether the men were justified in their conduct in the mill.
4. Whether the Carnegie company was justified in employing Pinkerton men.
5. What the jurisdiction of congress is in the matter.

Representative Oates says he is very well satisfied with the report, as it is a fair and impartial one and covers the subject very thoroughly.

NOT ALLOWED TO LAND.

Peculiar Treatment to Passengers on a Pacific Mail Steamship.

Panama, via Galveston, Aug. 1.—The steamship San Jose, of the Pacific Mail steamship line, commanded by Capt. Russell, arrived here last night, having left San Francisco on July 15 for Panama, by way of Acapulco.

The vessel was at Acapulco on the 22d. The passengers were not allowed to land, and there was considerble excitement on board when it was learned that the restriction was owing to a reported large theft of money and jewelry.

One of the passengers, it appears, entrusted several bags containing money and gems amounting in value altogether to $13,500, to the purser who has been 32 years in the service of the Pacific Mail Steamship company and whose integrity is regarded as above suspicion.

The money and valuables were stolen on the voyage, but by whom is a mystery. The police came on board and made a search among both passengers and crew but without satisfactory result so far as known.

DISASTROUS FIRE.

Four Persons Seriously Injured While Asleep.

Windsor, Ont., Aug. 1.—Shortly before 4 o'clock yesterday morning fire consumed the home of Frederick Smith in this city. The following were victims: Mrs. E. F. Smith, fatally burned; Mrs. F. W. Smith, fatally burned; E. Smith, seriously injured; Mrs. Creere, seriously burned.

All of the injured were asleep at the time and were caught in the fire before they could escape. Mrs. Creere and E. Smith jumped from upper windows and sustained internal injuries in addition to their burns.

SMALLPOX INCREASING.

Two States Quarantine Against Manitoba.

North Dakota and Minnesota Take Action to Prevent a Spread of the Disease.

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 1.—North Dakota and Minnesota have proclaimed a quarantine against Manitoba on account of the existence of smallpox in the province.

All trains south have been cancelled. An engine will be run to the boundary with express and mail matter, but no passengers will be allowed to cross the boundary. The Winnipeg oarsmen got away to-day for Minnetonka and the annual regatta of the Minnesota and the Northwest Rowing association begins in a couple of days.

PAPER SKULL MAN.

Another of the Famous Brothers Killed on the Coast.

San Francisco, Aug. 1.—George H. Maynard, a saloonkeeper on Townsend street, was killed in a drunken brawl by two hoodlums yesterday.

What makes his death noteworthy is that nearly a year ago his brother was killed by a blow on the head. An examination showed that his skull was the thinnest that ever came into the hospital.

The police then warned the victim of yesterday's fight to keep out of quarrels as he came from a paper-skulled family.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

CONSTANTINOPLE.

A Charming Romance Sketch by Pierre Toti.

It is with hesitation and considerable sadness that I undertake to write a chapter on Constantinople. When I was first asked to do so, I was disposed to decline; but I felt that refusal would be a kind of treason to the Turks, so here I am about to begin.

To write an impersonal description with the unbiased mind of an artist is altogether impossible to me, more so than ever, in fact, in the present case. Once more, then, those who follow me must resign themselves to see with my eyes, for it will be, so to speak, through my very soul that they will look at mighty Stamboul.

Oh, Stamboul, name of all names, ever appealing with fresh magic force to me! So soon as it is pronounced there rise before me, but far up above my head, the gigantic, incomparably beautiful outlines of a town dimly defined against the distant sky. The sea is at the feet of this ethereal city, a sea dotted with thousands of ships and boats, skimming about in ceaseless agitation, and from which issues a babel of sound in every language of the Levant. The smoke—a veil never completely lifted—floats like a long horizontal cloud above the crowds of black steamboats, the gilded kaiks, and the motely groups on the quays, shouting out their avocations, or hawking their various wares. And beyond it all rises the huge town, looking as if it were suspended in the air above the dust-begrimmed mists. There, pointing up into the pure blue sky, are the minarets with their sharp lance-like points; there are the round domes beyond, rising in endless masses, some of a grayish color, others of a dead white, piled up tier after tier, like pyramids of stone bells. There are the never-changing mosques, unaltered by the lapse of centuries, though, perchance, they were a little whiter ere the steamers from the West tarnished the air with their exhalations, and when none but sailing vessels anchored beneath their shade, but ever radically the same, crowning Stamboul generation after generation, with the same huge cupolas, giving to it its unique appearance, grander than that of any other town in the world. They are the very essence of the past, these unvarying mosques; and in their stones and marbles they enshrine the old Mussulman spirit which is still in the ascendent on the heights from which they rise. Whether Stamboul is approached from the Sea of Marmora or from the Asiatic side of the Black Sea, these mosques are the first things to emerge from the shifting mists of the horizon; rising in quiet dignity above all that is petty and modern on the quays and in the harbor, they thrill us with old memories, calling up the grand mystic dream of Islam, with the thought of Allah the Terrible and of death.

It was at the foot of these mosques that I passed that part of my life which is most indelibly imprinted on my memory. They looked down upon my adventurous career when the happy days of long ago flitted by all too fast. I saw them everywhere, their grand domes rising above me, now of a dull white beneath the summer sun, when I went to seek for shade beneath the midnight sky of December, serted square; now black and indistinct beneath the midnight sky of December, when my kaik glided furtively along the quays of sleeping Stamboul; ever present, apparently eternal, they were always with me, as I drifted from one day to another as chance dictated. From each one seemed to emanate a melancholy all its own; each one seemed charged with a special mission, the solemnity of which radiated from it upon all around Gradually, as my life became more and more that of a Turk, I grew to love them with a strange love, and to be more and more enamoured of the proud and dreamy race to which they belonged; in fact my soul, which was then in a kind of transition state, and altogether absorbed by a passionate love, was thoroughly attuned to Oriental mysticism.

And then, when time came for me to leave them, oh, how terribly sad I felt as, one dull evening in March, I floated along the Sea of Marmora, watching the town gradually getting smaller, gradually becoming blotted out! When all else was vague, all but gone, the grand domes and minarets still rose above the cold white sea fog, the superb and lofty outlines of Stamboul still stood out against the darkening sky. And then, in that last now fading sight, was symbolized, so to speak, all that I was leaving behind me with such bitter regret—all my happy Turkish life—and the whole scene became engraved upon my mind in an absolutely indelible manner. During all the years of wandering life which succeeded that evening, during all my exiles on seas however distant, I saw again, night after night in my dreams, the city of domes and minarets, and felt again, as it rose up against the gray horizon of the imaginary scene, the old homesickness as for a native land. I could draw Stamboul from memory without a mistake; and whenever I return to it I feel the same half-painful, half-delighted emotion—an emotion which time has never lessened.

I do not think, however, that the glamour of my personal recollections at all exaggerates the real grandeur of the aspect of Stamboul. It is denied by none, and is, in fact, traditional. All travelers, no matter who, even those whose ignorance is absolutely unfathomable, are affected in a singular manner when the imposing outlines gradually emerge in the distance. And as long as Stamboul, vulgarized, alas! though it is, and profaned by tourists from all parts of the world, retains this approach and these noble outlines, it will remain, in spite of everything, the wonder city of the Caliphs, the Queen of the Orient.

The various quarters of Constantinople are totally distinct, with inhabitants of different race, different religion, and different customs. These quarters will never amalgamate. Some are dark and gloomy, with lofty houses, warped out of shape by old age, huddled together in deep depressions, almost without sunshine, and white with lime, stone, and marble. Some parts of the city, again, are filled day and night with a noisy, restless, often grotesque-looking crowd, whilst others are deserted and solemn, the spirit of the past seeming to have taken refuge among the kiosks and tombs. Some houses perched upon hills overlook the distant fairy-like view; others are hidden in quiet nooks, beneath ancient trees grouped around some antique mosque, the inhabitants living just such a quiet country-like life as their ancestors before them for many generations.

No capital varies more in its internal details, or in its general aspect from hour to hour, according to the condition of the sky and clouds, and the direction of the wind. Burning summers and brilliant sunshine are succeeded by gloomy, rainy winters, with snow and then a sudden snowstorm flinging its white mantle over the many thousands of black roofs.

And these streets, squares, and outlying districts of Constantinople seem in some sense to belong to me and I to them. When I watch the idle crowds disgorged from the steamers, I grudge them their freedom to wander about the town, and look upon them as intruders desecrating my own domain, without a proper feeling of admiration and respect for ancient Stamboul. All these quarters which they stare at with idle curiosity I know as I know no other town in the world; I have traversed every yard of them by day and by night, mixing familiarly, as the fancy took me, in the life of the humblest of the people. But how am I to speak of all these things with the necessary impartiality, when at every turn I am met by memories of youth and of love? How can I truly judge that which I adore?

Constantinople may be said to begin here, for the shores of the long strait, alike on the European and Asiatic side, are lined with one long series of villages, kiosks, palaces, and mosques, getting closer together as the town itself, at the entrance of the Sea of Marmora, is approached.

The European side is the more fashionable, and has more modern villas than the other. The Asiatic shore is more shady, and there is a greater mystery about it, with its old Turkish houses and their grated windows, its ancient minarets and Oriental-looking fountains beneath the shade of plane-trees and cypresses.

Truth to tell, however, there are many grander sights than this, with a finer vegetation and loftier mountains. It is in minor details that the unique charm of the Bosphorus consists—a charm which is very real and not at all the result of my peculiar experiences, but is felt by every one who goes to Constantinople.

THE IRON HALL.

Reported to be on a Sound Financial Basis.

Boston, Aug. 1.—The Globe this morning publishes an interview with Joseph J. Giles on the subject of a receivership for the Order of the Iron Hall.

Mr. Giles was a representative in the legislature during the two last sessions and served upon the insurance committee. Regarding the story telegraphed from Indianapolis, he says:

"It is either a canard set up by old line insurance companies in the hope of stampeding the members of the Iron Hall or it may be a scheme which I would not approve, to invite criticism and court investigation, to redound to the prosperity of the organization, showing it to be in perfectly sound and solvent condition."

On July 21, 1832, Hiram Lukens entered the Doylesborrow Intelligencer office as an apprentice, and he has set type in the same office during the sixty-six years that have passed since then.

It is said that Robert B. Roosevelt, of New York, left the presidency of the Holland Trust company to give his undivided time to his mayoralty aspirations.

Count Herbert von Bismarck's most precious wedding present was given him by his father—the estate of Schoenhausen with its splendid old schloss and leagues of forest. The Bismarcks take their title from Schoenhausen.

A wire rope has been manufactured at Cardiff, Wales, which is believed to be the longest and largest in the world. It is 2,400 fathoms in length, which would make it two miles and 108 yards long, taking our measurement as the standard.

With the opening up of the world by railway and steamship communication the demand for diamonds has increased marvelously. The world now purchases about $25,000,000 worth per annum. Twenty years ago the amount was about 500,000 sterling.

Russia has become infected with the vice of ether drinking and the pernicious habit has spread so rapidly that the government has judged it necessary to prohibit the free sale of ether and of certain of its compounds and to schedule it among the poisons.

Mr. Depew has been again and again prevented starting on his annual European trip, but he means to leave shortly, however, come what may. A year or two ago when absent he had a big strike on his hands; this year Mr. Carnegie has even a greater one.

The most comprehensive and interesting criticism of New York made by any of the charming women of the Christian Endeavor association was the one advanced by the pretty girl who admitted that New York was very nice, of course, but that it was not Minneapolis.

Mexico has sent as part of her exhibit to the fair a body of the Rurales, whom General Grant pronounced the finest cavalry in the world; three bands of music, the cadets of Chapultepec, a body of unique infantry called the Zepadores, and an engineering corps.

The murderer Blockman, who was executed at Greensboro, N. C., the other day, had the distinction of being hanged with the rope that ended the life of one of the Chicago anarchists on the scaffold. Blockman was the fourth criminal to be strangled by the fatal cord.

In connection with Mr. Stanley's defeat at Lambeth it is interesting to note that exactly the same number of votes (2,524) was recorded for the Liberal candidate as was given to the successful Conservative candidate, General Fraser, in 1885. It is also a curious fact that the Liberal majority at Darlington yesterday was 56, and that in 1886 it was 57.

MY STRANGE STORY.

I am unfortunate enough to be the daughter of a hairdresser. Not that I would have you infer that I own a barber for my paternal progenitor. My father is an artist of the first water, has the handsomest suite of rooms in the city, does an enormous business, and dresses the heads of all the first ladies in town.

By birth he was a Connecticut Yankee by the name of Peter Jones, but since he set up in the hair-dressing business he has been Mons. Pierre de la Johannes. Ah, there is something in a name, say what you may.

My hair was kept short until I was 14; after that it was not cut. At 16 I rejoiced in a very luxuriant crop of dark brown ringlets. It was at just that epoch that the rage for false hair came in. Every woman had hair on the brain. My father worked night and day constructing curls, false fronts and other ornamental head gear, and still the supply never equaled the demand.

Every woman's head ran to hair to such an extent that no wonder the naturalists were astounded and felt grave fears that there was to be some sudden and radical change in the organization of the female sex.

The Bible tells us that we cannot make one hair white or black, but that assertion was written down before these days of patent hair-renewers, restoratives, tonics, and invigorators. I know people who had white heads yesterday, and to-day are happy with hair as black as the raven's wing. I have seen black-haired women changed to golden-haired blondes, and vice versa, all in the course of a week or less.

As soon as this infatuation in regard to hair commenced my father began to make experiments on my locks. Every new style which came out was reproduced on my head. My hair was braided and twisted and frizzed and puffed and left to hang loose, and then again drawn so tight that, like the little darky in the song, I couldn't shut my mouth, and my forehead shone like the sheepskin on the head of a drum.

I had a lover, but I never could have time to bring him to the point, for he came evenings and evenings my father always practiced on my hair. My suitor did nearly propose on one occasion; that is, he got so far as to say that he loved me and wanted me to—

And here father made his appearance and marched me off to the shop to have my hair dressed a la Greque.

Philip was angry, and persisted in believing it was a contrived plan between my father and myself, and a fortnight afterward he married Ella Hastings. Well, there is one comfort, he's got a wife who makes him walk Spanish.

By and by father turned his attention to the manufacture of restoratives and depilatories, all warranted efficacious, of course, "and all of them had been faithfully tested by a member of the discoverer's own family," meaning me.

Oh, dear, how much I had endured from them! I had had gallons of restorers poured over my devoted head. I had smelled of lead glycerine, cayenne, sage tea, olive oil and beeswax, sulphur, bergamot, bay rum, gum shellac, and only my scientific parent knows what.

I had my hair burned with curling-irons, bleached to red, and from red changed to black, and from black to brown, and so on ad infinitum. My head had been soaked for 24 hours in alkali, for the same length of time in acid, and I had sat on the top of the house to "bleach" until I felt like a mud pie baked on the desert of Sahara.

Time passed on, and brought me a second sweetheart. George Guild was his name. He was an extremely sensitive young man, a little superstitious (my brother Tom said cowardly), and inclined to be unstable in most matters. But he was good-looking and had some property, and we were engaged with the full consent of my parents.

At the time I promised myself to him I had black hair, just the color he most admired, but two or three days afterward my father took it into his head to bleach my locks auburn. Mme. de Belair had come to town to sing in an opera; her hair was red, and, of course, red hair became at once the fashion.

George came to see me. What a fearful change passed over him as he looked at me! He grew pale as death, gasped, and acted as if he had about made up his mind to swoon. Then gathering his energies for a final effort, he seized his hat and made for the door. I grasped his arm and held him fast.

"For heaven's sake, George!" cried I, "what is the matter?"

"I—I—you—you—let me go!" cried he, frantically.

"Do tell me what it is!" said I, still holding him.

"Your hair!" gasped he, "it's red! and two or three days ago it was black! Oh, heavens!"

"Don't take on so!" said I. "Father bleached it. It's all the fashion."

"There's something wrong with it. I guess I had better go," said he and went off like a hot shot.

He did not come again, and I, sick with suspense, sent for him, and appointed a certain evening for the visit. The very day I expected him father called me down to the shop, just as I was going to dress to receive George. He had prepared a new restorer, and wanted to try it on my head.

I was desperate and said something unfilial, and he looked his reproach and asked me if he had not always done his duty to me.

Of course, I submitted, and just as he was about to submerge my head in the new machine he was called away to dress Mrs. Colonel Morgan's head for a ball. So he left Bob, his blundering assistant, to apply the restorer. It was a most villainous smelling compound the boy plastered me with, and as soon as the operation was over I hurried up to my chamber and dressed. Then I descended to the parlor to await George's coming.

My head felt strangely and presently the scalp began to itch and smart most intolerably. It grew worse, until at last in sheer desperation, I seized a brush and applied it to my head.

Good heaven! the hair fell off in handfuls, and possessed with a horrible sort of fascination I stood there before the glass and brushed until my head was as bare as a peeled onion. Curls and braids came off by the yard and tumbled on the floor, and I stood there looking like an old woman of ninety.

And then the door opened, and George Guild came in.

He cast at me one glance of horrid dismay, uttered a cry of alarm, and fled from the house.

I heard the next day that he started for California.

A letter, which he left behind, told me that he loved me, but he was satisfied that I had dealings with the evil one, and therefore, dared not link his fate with mine.

Investigation developed the fact that Bob had mistaken a bottle of depilatory for the wonderful renewer, and I can conscientiously recommend the same to all ladies who possess beards and are not happy in their proprietorship.

I cried a week or two most of the time after losing my hair and lover. But now, that time enables me to think calmly over the matter, I do not regret the accident, for I have escaped the eternal manipulations of my father.

I wear a wig, and have no desire that my hair shall grow any faster than it chooses to.

ABOUT PEOPLE.

The story that Mr. Whittier is to write an ode on the world's fair is now denied on authority. He says that his health will not permit any literary engagement.

Now that William K. Townsend of New Haven, has been appointed a United States district judge, the law firm of which he was a member has been reorganized, consisting now only of George D. Watrous and Edward G. Buckland.

John Sartain, Philadelphia's great steel engraver, the friend and counselor of Poe, is now 84 years of age. He is young in spirit and still elastic in step. His life and works form an important chapter in the art history of America—when the time comes to write one.

The consul general of Holland at New York is anxious to get news of Mrs. Sophia Elizabeth Nohl, as she has fallen heir to $50,000. She was formerly a Miss Neumann, and eloped from Paramaribo, Dutch Guiana, in 1876, with a man named Nohl, coming to this country.

Olive Schreiner, who wrote the "Story of an African Farm," received only $65 for that production, but many people think it gave her a permanent place among litterateurs. When in London, Miss Schreiner lives in a tiny suite of rooms in a building devoted to workingmen. She retires to her "den" on her African farm, in the midst of green fields, when she has anything important to write.

Mrs. Mary Frost Ormsby, who writes verses for the magazines and is credited with organizing the first campaign club of women, went to see Longfellow shortly before he died and is reported by the Boston Journal as telling this anecdote in connection with that visit: The poet escorted her to the door and, as he stood there, looking over the vacant ground toward the Charles river, Mrs. Ormsby asked: "Mr. Longfellow, why did you cut down all the trees there between the house and the river?" "I did it, madame," said the poet, "so that nothing should stand between me and those purple hills in the distance."

NERVOUS DYSPEPSIA.

Senator James F. Pierce, of New York, writes:

"For the past two years I have suffered very much from an aggravated form of nervous dyspepsia. I have resorted to various remedial agents, deriving but little benefit. A few months since a friend of mine suggested the trial of Allcock's Porous Plasters. Following the suggestion, I have been using the same with the happiest effects. To those similarly afflicted let me suggest the manner of their use. I place one over my stomach, one over the hepatic region, and one on my back. The effect is excellent. From the day I commenced their use have been slowly but surely improving, and am quite confident that by continuing I shall again be restored to my accustomed health."

MERCURIAL

Mr. J. C. Jones, of Fulton, Ark., says of S.S.S. "About ten years ago I contracted a severe case of blood poison. Leading physicians prescribed medicine after medicine, which I took without any relief. I also tried mercurial and potash remedies, with unsuccessful results, but which brought on an attack of mercurial rheumatism that made my life one of agony. After suffering four years I gave up all remedies and commenced using S. S. S. After taking several bottles, I was entirely cured and able to resume work.

Doctor Talmage's Sermon Across the Water.

The Great American Minister Flooded With Invitations to Talk to the People.

London, Aug. 1.—Since his return from Russia, Dr. Talmage has been literally flooded with invitations to address congregations and lyceums on the subject of his journey to the land of the czar, whither he went with Mr. Louis Klopsch to direct the distribution of the Christian Herald relief cargo.

While expressing his high appreciation of the cordial welcome and splendid hospitality extended by the officials of St. Petersburg and Moscow, of the civic honors heaped upon the American visitors, and of Russia's national gratitude to America, as personally expressed by the Czarewitch at Peterhof, where he entertained them as guests, Dr. Talmage has been compelled to adhere to his original program. During the week he has been preaching in the leading Scottish cities. His arrangements for next week include services at Newcastle and Sunderland, and thereafter he goes to the Isle of Man for a few days.

The sermon selected for this week is entitled "Pre-eminent," the text being, John iii: 31, "He that cometh from above is above all."

The most conspicuous character of history steps out upon the platform. The finger which, diamonded with light, pointed down to him from the Bethenem sky, was not only a ratification of the finger of prophecy, the finger of genealogy, the finger of chronology, the finger of events—all five fingers pointing in one direction. Christ is the overtopping figure of all time. He is the vox humana in all music, the gracefullest line in all sculpture, the most exquisite mingling of lights and shades in all painting, the acme of all climaxes, the dome of all cathedraled grandeur, and the peroration of all splendid language.

The Greek alphabet is made up of 24 letters, and when Christ compared himself to the first letter and the last letter, the alpha and the omega, he appropriated to himself all the splendors that you can spell out either with those two letters and all letters between them. "I am the Alpha and he Omega, the beginning and the end, the first and the last." Or, if you prefer the words of the text, "above all."

It means, after you have piled up all Alpine and Himalayan altitudes, the glory of Christ would have to spread its wings and descend a thousand leagues to touch these summits. Pelion, a high mountain of Thessaly, Ossa, a high mountain, and Olympus, a high mountain; but mythology tells us when the giants warred against the gods they piled up these three mountains, and from the top of them proposed to scale the heavens; but the height was not great enough, and there was a complete failure. And after all the giants—Isaiah and Paul, prophetic and apostolic giants; Raphael and Michael Angelo, artistic giants; cherubim and seraphim and archangel, celestial giants—have failed to climb to the top of Christ's glory, they might all well unite in the words of the text and say, "He that cometh from above is above all."

First, Christ must be above all else in our preaching. There are also many books on homiletics scattered through the world that all laymen, as well as all clergymen, have made up their minds what sermons ought to be. That sermon is most effectual which most pointedly puts forth Christ as the pardon of all sin and the correction of all evil, individual, social, political, national. There is no reason why we should ring the endless changes on a few phrases. There are those who think that if an exhortation or a discourse have frequent mention of justification, sanctification, covenant of works, and covenant of grace, that therefore it must be profoundly evangelical, while they are suspicious of a discourse which presents the same truth, but under different phraseology. Now, I say there is nothing in all the opulent realm of Anglo-Saxonism or all the word treasures that we inherit from the Latin and the Indo-European but we have a right to marshal it in religious discussion. Christ sets the example. His illustrations were from the grass, the flowers, the spittle, the salve, the barnyard fowl, the crystals of salt, as well as from the seas and the stars; and we do not propose in our Sabbath school teaching and in our pulpit address to be put on the limits.

I know that there is a great deal said in our day against words, as though they were nothing. They may be misused, but they have an imperial power. They are the bridge between soul and soul, between Almighty God and the human race. What did God write upon the tables of stone? Words. What did Christ utter on Mount Olivet? Words. Out of what did Christ strike the spark for the illumination of the universe? Out of words. "Let there be light," and light was. Of course, thought is the cargo and words are only the ship; but how fast would your cargo get on without the ship? What you need, my friends, in all your work, in your Sabbath school class, in your reformatory institutions, and what we all need is to enlarge our vocabulary when we come to speak about God and Christ and heaven. We ride a few old words to death when there is such illimitable resource. Shakespeare employed fifteen thousand different words for dramatic purposes; Milton employed eight thousand different words for poetic purposes; Rufus Choate employed over eleven thousand different words for legal purposes; but the most of us have less than a thousand words that we can manage, less than five hundred, and that makes us so stupid.

When we come to set forth the love of Christ we are going to take the tenderest phraseology wherever we find it, and if it has never been used in that direction before, all the more shall we use it. When we come to speak of the glory of Christ, the conquerer, we are going to draw our similes from triumphal arch and oratorio and everything grand and stupendous. The French navy have eighteen flags by which they give signal; but those eighteen flags they can put into fifty-six thousand different combinations. And I have to tell you that these standards of the cross may be lifted into combinations infinite and varieties everlasting. And let me say to young men who are after awhile going to preach Jesus Christ, you will have the largest liberty and unlimited resource. You have only to present Christ in your own way.

Jonathan Edwards preached Christ in the severest argument ever penned, and John Bunyan preached Christ in the sublimest allegory ever composed. Edward Payson, sick and exhausted, leaned up against the side of the pulpit and wept out his discourse, while George Whitefield, with the manner and the voice and the start of an actor, overwhelmed his auditory. It would have been a different thing if Jonathan Edwards had tried to write and dream about the pilgrim's progress to the celestial city, or John Bunyan had attempted an essay on the human will.

Brighter than the light, fresher than the fountains, deeper than the seas are all these gospel themes. Song has no melody, flowers have no sweetness, sunset sky has no color compared with these glorious themes. These harvests of grace spring up quicker than we can sickle them. Kindling pulpits with their fire, and producing revolutions with their power, lighting up dying beds with their glory, they are the sweetest thought for the poet, and they are the most thrilling illustration for the orator, and they offer the most intense scene for the artist, and they are to the ambassador of the sky all enthusiasm. Complete pardon for direst guilt. Sweetest comfort for ghastliest agony. Brightest hope for grimmest death. Grandest resurrection for darkest sepulcher. Oh, what a gospel to preach! His birth, his suffering, his miracles, his parables, his sweat, his tears, his blood, his atonement, his intercession—what glorious themes! Do we exercise faith? Christ is its object. Do we have love? It fastens on Jesus. Have we a fondness for the church? It is because Christ died for it. Have we a hope of heaven? It is because Jesus went ahead, the herald and the forerunner.

Stand on some high hill of heaven, and in all the radiant sweep the most glorious object will be Jesus. Myriads gazing on the scars of his suffering, in silence first, afterward breaking forth into acclamation. The martyrs, all the purer for the flame through which they passed, will say: 'This is the Jesus whom we preached at Corinth, and at Cappadocia, and at Antioch, and at Jerusalem." Little children clad in white will say: "This is the Jesus who took us in his arms and blessed us, and when the storms of the world were too cold and loud, brought us into this beautiful place." The multitudes of the bereft will say: "This is the Jesus who comforted us when our heart broke." Many who had wandered clear off from God and plunged into vagabondism, but were saved by grace will say: "This is the Jesus who pardoned us. We were lost on the mountains, and he brought us home. We were guilty, and he made us white as snow. Mercy boundless, grace unparalleled." And then, after each one has recited his peculiar deliverances and peculiar mercies, recited them as by solo, all the voices will come together in a great chorus, which shall make the arches echo and re-echo with the eternal reverberation of gladness and peace and triumph.

Edward I. was so anxious to go to the Holy Land that when he was about to expire he bequeathed $160,000 to have his heart, after his decease, taken to the Holy Land in Asia Minor, and his request was complied with. But there are hundreds to-day whose hearts are already in the Holy Land of heaven. Where your treasures are there are your hearts also. John Bunyan, of whom I spoke at the opening of the discourse, caught a glimpse of that place, and in his quaint way he said: "And I heard in my dream, and lo! the bells of the city rang again for joy; and as they opened the gates to let in the men I looked in after them, and lo! the city shone like the sun, and there were streets of gold, and men walked on them, harps in their hands, to sing praises with all; and after that they shut up the gates, which when I had seen I wished myself among them!"

Collectors on the Missouri Pacific Trains.

The Boldest Scheme Yet Worked by a Company Was Successfully Robbed.

Kansas City, Mo., Aug 1.—The Missouri Pacific road to-day placed collectors on every train in the service. This extraordinary action was taken to prevent a continuance of the frauds that have so long been practiced by the dishonest clique of conductors and ticket agents representing every road running into Kansas City, and who have for over a year back been conducting a systematic piracy on the treasuries of the different companies.

The scheme is a very simple one, the most remarkable thing about it being it was not detected long ago.

The way the game was worked was simply this: When a customer came into one of the ticket offices the agent would tell him that there was no use in paying full price for a regular ticket, when he could just as well ride for half fare.

When an explanation was asked for the agent would say that there were conductors on every line who would take passengers at a reduction, and that if it was any object to save the money he would be glad to arrange the matter.

If the passenger agreed he would be loaded on a train in charge of one of the crooked conductors, who, after receiving half the regular fare, would divide with the ticket agent and pocket the remainder. For some time back the different roads have had detectives working on the case, and arrests are expected daily.

During the dog-day season, the drain of nervous and vital energy may be counteracted by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. In purifying the blood, it acts as a superb corrective and tonic, and enables the system to defy malarial and other climatic influences.

RAILROAD ACCIDENT.

Two Sections of an Excursion Train Come Together.

Milwaukee, Wis., August 1.—The second section of train No. 51 on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad, having an excursion party from the Union Stock Yards, Chicago, ran into the first section in the Union station here at 11:30 a. m.

No one on the first section was injured, but two empty passenger coaches in the rear were telescoped.

Ten men in the first coach of the second section, which was a combination baggage and smoking car, were injured, and one died soon afterwards.

Two more may not live. Fabian, single, aged 21, of Chicago, died at 1:15 p. m.; Jos. Gill, single, Chicago, received serious internal injuries and leg broken; Chas. Baer, single, Chicago, left leg cut off, serious internal injuries; Edmund Carl, single, Chicago, right arm broken and left hand crushed; Matt Comiskey, single, Chicago, left leg broken in two places; James Stuart, single, Chicago, right leg and right arm broken; Denni's Bartholemew, single, Chicago, slight flesh wounds; H. C. Mosier, married, Chicago, left leg bruised.

PURE AND WHOLESOME QUALITY

Commends to public approval the California liquid laxative remedy, Syrup of Figs. It is pleasant to the taste, and by acting gently on the kidneys, liver and bowels to cleanse the system effectually, it promotes the health and comfort of all who use it, and with millions it is the best and only remedy.

FATAL WRECK.

Cincinnati, August 1.—A front collision occurred late yesterday afternoon near Evans street, on the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton railroad, between a special incoming passenger train and a switch engine of the Big Four railroad. Mr. M. Downs, the engineer of the switch engine, was killed, and Sam Powers, the fireman, of the same train, was badly scalded. Of 90 passengers on the special only one is reported hurt, and that only by a sprained ankle. The engines were pretty badly used up and a platform of one passenger car was crushed.

An English bishop returning from a tour of the states, occupied a large double cabin with his wife, who was somewhat querulous and exacting. One night, during a storm, the lady complained of close air, and her spouse arose and opened a port-hole, whereupon a big wooden ball bobbed in, and kept on bobbing. The bishop knotted up its string and hung it on the wall of the cabin; it thumped as the vessel rocked and annoyed the lady further. So the patient bishop let out the loops and put the ball under his pillow, after which peace and slumber. The next day at dinner he recounted his adventures of the night, and bridled with intense delight at the roars of laughter which greeted the story. The captain recovered sufficiently to gasp: "Why, man ah—that is, lord—that ball you slept on hangs at the end of the ship's lightning conductor!"

CHAPERONING AS A BUSINESS.

Bright Women Who Relieve Anxious Mammas for the Summer.

The very latest development in woman's work is the chaperoning of young girls on summer tours, either of travel or stationary residence at large hotels or boarding houses. The quick wit of some American woman saw what could be done in so wide a field and started in to reap the reward, with, of course, many imitators when her success was found to be a solid fact.

A mother cannot always leave her family to escort one member of it to Lake George, Bar Harbor or Newport. Relatives may have other plans, friends are perhaps not exactly such guardians as she would be willing to trust her child with, and she longs for a reliable, trustworthy party to undertake the charge.

Just here the paid chaperon steps in and is welcomed gladly. She is usually a lady in reduced circumstances, conversant with the ways of society and the intricacies of travel, and provided with indisputable references as to character, capability, etc.

A party of young Philadelphia girls sailed for Europe last week in charge of one of these paid duennas and couriers rolled into one. She was a bright pleasing woman of 35, shrewd and businesslike, yet not offensively watchful. Her expenses are paid and $500 beside for the season.

HER ONE FROCK.

Mrs. Langtry's Black Evening Dress That "Went it Alone" for a Season.

The experience of a professional beauty, Mrs. Langtry, in regard to black gowns is worth recording. The first season that the Jersey Lily spent in London found her the possessor of one evening gown, and this a very simple black. Immediately after her picture appeared she became the rage, and duchesses themselves did not hesitate to stand on chairs to get a glimpse of her as she passed. Everywhere she wore the black gown. One night it was turned in so that her beautiful throat showed; another night it was drawn up close to her neck and a bunch of white lilies against it brought out its blackness and her fairness. It was mended, it was pressed, but at reception or ball all that season the beautiful woman wore the black gown. Later on, when evening dresses were very ordinary things to her, she said most positively: "Never tell me that a woman can't dress well who has a single frock. I know that she cannot only look well, but always be distinguished; and I know it through the best teacher of all—experience." And so it is that the black evening gown is commended, not only to the woman who has a great deal of money but to her who, though she may be bent on pleasure, yet has a frugal mind.

Advice to Mothers of Fretful Babies.

828 Huron St., Toledo, O., July 17, '92. Hand Medicine Co., Gentlemen:

My baby is now three months old and has had colic all her life. We gave her all kinds of remedies without any beneficial effect. I was almost discouraged in trying anything else when a friend told me of your Dr. Hand's Colic cure. I gave her 12 drops which acted like a charm. Now as soon as I discover she has wind colic I give her one or two doses which relieves her entirely. I want to advise all mothers who have fretful babies to use Dr. Hand's Colic Cure. I will hereafter always keep it in the house.

IN TRADING CIRCLES

Both at Our Home and Abroad.

Wheat Quotations for the Day—Price Currents for Produce and Other Articles.

The receipts of wheat to-day at Minneapolis and Duluth are 290,472 bu., and at five other western points 887,884 bu., an aggregate of 1,178,356 bu. On the corresponding Monday in 1891 the receipts were 1,070,013 bu., with only 65,147 bu. of northwestern wheat.

The export clearances Saturday at four Atlantic ports were: Wheat, 106,284 bu., and flour to an aggregate of 135,000 bu. Exports of corn, 37,078 bu., and of oats 21,877 bu.

Holiday in England to-day, and no markets.

The Markets To-Day.

Some of the Chicago daily letters fully support the reputation of the Windy city. On Saturday one of them supports the theory of about one-half a crop in the northwest, and a production in France of 40,000,000 in excess of requirements. In years corresponding to those of the author of that letter France has not produced her own bread.

The secretary of the Kansas agricultural bureau estimates the wheat crop in that state a 60,125,000 bu. He makes the average of corn 81,000,000; oats, 80,000,000; barley, 84,000,000; rye, 90,000,000.

The visible supply of wheat increased in the week 925,000 bus.; corn increased 339,000 bus.; oats decreased 748,000 bus. In the corresponding week in 1891 wheat increased 2,668,000 bus.; corn increased 837,000 bus., and oats 71,000 bus.

On the corresponding Monday to this in 1891 No. 2 soft wheat sold at 90 3-8c to 91 3-4c, or 11 1-2c above price of today. Will some of our interior friends, who think we write for the bulls occasionally, tell us why is this thus? The world's production is estimated this year at 1,640,000,000 bus., against 1,684,000,000 in 1891. Please all study it out, drop us a line and "we'll print them."

The markets for wheat have not advanced to-day quite as much as was expected, considering the temporary defeat of the Hatch bill, but it is well known that speculation has been driven out of the markets and will not reappear in a day. It is likely to increase, and with the present firm tone of the market it is likely to increase on the bull side. The close of markets show an advance of only 1-4 to 3-8c.

Corn has also improved in price in Chicago, market closing 3-8c to 1-2c higher, and about steady in New York, for September, and 1-4c lower for August.

In New York August wheat closed at 83c, a gain of 3-8c; September at 83 7-8c, a gain of 1-4c; August corn at 55 1-2c, a loss of 1-4c; September at 54 1-2c, steady. August oats 35 5-8c, a gain of 1-2c.

In Chicago August wheat closed at 77 3-8c, a gain of 1-4c; September at 77 3-8c, a gain of 1-8c. August corn closed at 49 3-8c, a gain of 1-2c; September at 48 7-8c, a gain of 3-8c. August oats at 30 1-2c, a gain of 1-4c.

In Toledo there has been an increase of trading in wheat futures, and an evident freedom from the impending legislation in congress. The dealings were more free for September than in other futures. There is no other new influence of importance and no English markets. Prices opened and have ruled a little higher than Saturday's closing, and we close 1-2c higher, and at the best prices of the day. On the call August wheat sold at 79@79 1-8; September at 79 3-8c@1-2. After the call August sold at 79 1-8c and closed at about 79 1-2c, sellers; September sold at 79 1-2c and closed at 79 3-4c, sellers.

Cash wheat was in fair request. Prices improved 1-2c at the close. No. 2 soft sold at 79 to 79 1-2 and to 79 1-4c, and at close 79 1-2c sellers was the market. No. 3 soft was freely dealt in at 72 3-4 to 73c and for September at 73c. No. 4 soft at 68 1-2 to 69c. Rejected No. 1 at 69 1-2c, weevily at 69 1-2c. No. 3 red and white 71 1-2c.

Corn was held 1-2c higher without business. Rye No. 2 for August at 67c. Rejected at 55c.

Clover seed was steady. On the call October sold at $5.32 1-2 and after the call at the same price, to extent of 1,000 bags.

Corn in Nebraska.

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 1.—The Bee prints to-day crop reports from 100 points in the state covering 51 counties. In making their estimates the correspondents have used last year's enormous crop as a basis for comparison, and the statement that the season will yield two-thirds to three-fourths of a corn crop means that the corn will crib from fifty to sixty bushels to the acre. It is safe to say that the Nebraska corn crop will be quite up to the average.

FROM THE MAFIA.

Letter to the New Orleans Chief of Police.

A Probable Fake, the Work of Some Hair-Brained Man in the South.

New Orleans, Aug. 1.—Chief of Police Gaster yesterday received a letter from what is supposed to be the Mafia. The letter was inclosed in an old envelope with a skull and cross-bones on it. Following is the letter:

New Orleans, July 29, 1892.

To Chief of Police Gaster, Sir: We have in our possession Judge Marr. We will deliver him in your hands for $500, or will liberate him for $100. Will send you his old clothes, etc., such as we found on his person; but bear in mind, for one bad break unauthorized by you his body will be riddled by shot, then sent you for a present. This money must reach us before 20 days, unless you will have his right ear for further information. Address general postoffice, Chicago, St. Louis or New Orleans.

Respectfully,

P. J. NUNNEZ.

It will be remembered that Judge Marr, of the criminal district court in this city, mysteriously disappeared last April. He was old and feeble, and was last seen walking along the levee. The impression of his friends was that he had fallen into the river and was drowned, and that impression still prevails.

NEW ENTERPRISE.

Judge Burke Will Improve His New Tract

Of Acre Property by Locating Factories Upon It and Platting the Remainder.

The Bee stated one day last week that J. F. Cline, treasurer of the Toledo & Ohio Central Railroad company, had sold 42 acres of land on the Infirmary road to Judge Burke for $30,000.

Judge Burke bought the property with a view of building it up by making improvements.

To do this he offers inducements to manufacturers and negotiations are about closed with one enterprise which will employ 400 men. The remainder will be platted and placed on the market.

In these days of cutting prices people should remember that they are days of cutting qualities as well and it pays you to investigate when you see or hear of a price on any article that seems lower than you have been in the habit of buying it for. Investigate, look at the quality, look at the width, look for the imperfections.

If you find the goods are all right you will also probably find that the parties you have been buying from will sell it to you just as low. If it is not all right then you know the reason that it is less in price.

We carefully avoid cut widths, inferior qualities and seconds in manufacture. We invite comparison.

LAMSON BROS.

HOW THE FEUD BEGAN.

Thompson's boy was tall and slim,
An' pleggy nigh a fool;
Thompson, though, was proud o' him,
And evenin's, arter school,
Ust to take him with him when
He went to set aroun'
An' argy politics with men
That loafed about the town.

Nothin' tickled Thompson more
Than hearin' Toble shout,
So he ust to git the floor
An' draw the urchin' out;
Then he'd stand, a lookin' proud,
Thinkin': "Ain't he smart?"
Never noticing the crowd
One by one depart.

Wal', one evenin' on the street
Thompson showed him off
'Mong some men he chanced to meet,
One of which was Goff.
Goff was sort o' cross that day—
Wasn't feelin' right,
An' I reckon, truth to say,
Wasn't jest perlite.

Thompson, bimeby, shouted out,
Pullin' Goff aroun',
Don't ye reckon he's erbout
The purtest boy in town?
"Yeas," says Goff, "the 'pears ter be
A little underdone;
I'd make him over, seems ter me,
Ef I had sech a son."

That was forty years ago,
But ever sence that night
The Goffs and Thompsons hated so
They always shot at sight;
An' only one is left to-day;
He's up in Illinoy,
As rich as mud, I've heard 'em say,
Which same is Thompson's boy.
